Group Votes to Add 300 Million To Farm Funds

Sends Measure to Upper House for Action Monday

ALL ITEMS STAY

Roosevelt Says Economic And Social Justice Not Attained

Washington —(AP)— The senate appropriations committee approved today increases of more than $300,000,000 in next year's farm funds as it sent to the senate for action Monday a farm supply bill totaling $922,864,668.

The full committee approved every item voted by a subcommittee yesterday, and it overwhelmingly beat down attempts by Senator Hale (R-Maine) to reduce two of the increases.

Hale sought to trim an unbudgeted $212,000,000 item for parity payments to $106,000,000 but his motion lost, 15 to 2.

A similar attempt to pare an $85,000,000-item for surplus removal operations to President Roosevelt's budget figure of $7,200,000 was beaten, 13 to 4.

Washington — (AP) — The nation's farmers, told by President Roosevelt last night that they had not yet reached the goal of economic and social justice, watched the senate appropriations committee today to see whether it would approve a proposed multi-million dollar increase in the annual farm appropriation.

Late yesterday, a subcommittee jolted the congressional economy drive by raising the appropriation to $958,000,000—some $211,000,000 more than the amount voted by the house—and by providing that an additional $100,000,000 of agricultural outlays should be financed by loans.

Leaders of a bi-partisan bloc from the farm states predicted that this program would be approved by the full committee today. The committee's O. K. would send the measure on to the senate for action Monday.

Would Offset Cuts

Enactment of the enlarged appropriation would offset the bulk of the cuts, totaling nearly $300,000,000, which congress has made in the president's budget estimates in an effort to avoid imposing new taxes in this election year. Mr. Roosevelt told the legislators early in the session that $460,000,000 of new levies should be imposed to finance "emergency" defense expenditures.

The president, who recommended a farm appropriation of some $67,000,000 larger than that passed by the house, broadcast to dinner meetings of farmers in the agricultural states last night on the seventh anniversary of the inception of the New Deal farm programs.

To the farmers gathered at 50 and 75-cent dinners in 22 midwestern, southern and far western states, Mr. Roosevelt declared the war abroad had made it "more than ever important for farmers to have a government in Washington that is looking out for their interests—not just by letting glittering generalities but by specific policies and concrete action."

He spoke of the farmers' "long hard struggle" to get laws and programs which would give them an

3 'Teen-Aged Boys, Girl Killed as Car Collides With Train

Champaign, Ill.—(AP)—Three 'teen-aged boys and a girl were killed and two girls critically injured last night when their car rammed into a coach of a big four passenger train as they were returning home from a gay skating party.

The dead all of Mansfield, 28 miles from Champaign, were:

Milton Willis Warren Jr. 17, son of the Piatt county farm bureau federation president. Robert Carmichael, 14; Charles E. Sizer, 15; Norma Ruch, 15.

The injured, who were taken to Burnham hospital were Atha Copenhaver, 15, and Corine Hendrickson, 17.

Maybe They Had "China Clippers" Too

Contrary to popular belief, prehistoric men and women had their dental troubles, too. The idea that they flashed a mouthful of perfect teeth grew from the fact that early archeologists picked only the best specimens for exhibition purposes. We wonder how prehistoric tooth aches were handled—without X-ray machines, forceps, etc. Dentistry, like advertising, although used in prehistoric times has been developed and improved through the ages, until its present form is highly efficient. Opponents Trying To Delay Action On Hatch Measure

Hope to Delay Showdown Until Bill Can be Laid Aside

Washington —(AP)— Opponents of the Hatch bill to curb the political activities of approximately 500,000 state employes marshalled their forces today in an attempt to postpone senate action indefinitely.

They hoped to forestall a showdown vote until the measure could be laid aside for the time being in favor of the $958,000,000 agriculture appropriations bill.

Senator Mintin (D-Ind.), a leader in the fight against the Hatch measure, predicted that a majority of the senate would agree to vote on both the farm bill and the administration's reciprocal trade agreements program before it acted finally on the anti-politics bill.

What opponents hoped to gain was more time to rally their forces against the proposal of Senator Hatch (D-N. M.) to extend the present ban on political activity by most federal employes to those state workers who are paid in whole or in part with federal funds.

Democrats Split

Senate Democratic ranks are split wide apart by the measure and as their party squable continued, Republicans looked on gleefully.

The Republicans, who have voted almost solidly against every proposal to weaken the bill, came to the rescue of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, late yesterday when Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) attempted to override Barkley's wishes and adjourn until Monday.

This motion, which would have delayed action, was beaten, 34 to 30.

McKellar's unsuccessful move was made a few minutes after Barkley, his face white with emotion, had told complaining Democrats in a hastily-called cloakroom conference that if they sought to force a party caucus on the question of killing the pending bill he would make his leadership an issue by offering his resignation.

Special Prosecutor In Detroit Quiz Is Victim of Stroke

Detroit —(AP)— Special Prosecutor William C. Buckingham of the graft-gambling jury, a victim of what his physician called "strain and overwork" during the months of investigation from which sprang sensational charges of official corruption, died early today after a stroke.

Buckingham, 42, a chief figure in the gathering and presentation of evidence in the case which has rocked Wayne county with indictment after indictment collapsed at his Dearborn home last night. He died at 12:25 a. m. in a Detroit hospital.

The death of the vigorous attorney, a right-hand man to Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea and others, came at a moment when the case had reached another climax—suspension of McCrea by Governor Dickinson and promise of a fight over it from the former.

Escapes With Cut When Train Strikes Truck

Deerfield, Wis. — (AP) — A truck driven by Martin Simonsen, 36, of Deerfield, was struck by a freight train here at 1:20 a. m. today and was dragged for more than 600 feet but Simonsen escaped with a cut on the forehead, according to county traffic officers. He was taken to Madison General hospital.

Wife-Beater Is Slain in Georgia

Whipped Body Found Near Scene of Series Of Floggings

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—Search for a 6-foot barber accused of wife-beating is ended with the finding of his leather-lashed body near a pine knoll that has been the scene of a series of floggings by night riders in the last year.

Isaac Gaston, 36, beaten from the middle of his back to his knees, was found dead yesterday by a Negro farmhand in a depression about 75 yards from trampled underbrush, a 4-foot strap and the tracks of many feet which indicated he was whipped unmercifully.

County Policemen J. W. Gilbert said the barber apparently was seized by floggers Thursday night. Two of his teeth were knocked out.

Several other persons, including a minister, another man and two Negro women, had been flogged in the same locality in the last year. None of these was fatal.

The barber, operator of a suburban shop, had a police record of drunkenness and had been sought since Tuesday on a charge of wife-beating.

Chief William Tyler of East Point police said he had wrested an engagement ring, a gold cross and a $6-check from his wife, beat her, and used the proceeds to buy liquor.

SEC Will Conduct Hearings on Two Holding Utilities

Systems May be Required To Relinquish Certain Subsidiaries

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — The Securities and Exchange commission announced today it would start hearings on possible modification of the holdings of the North American company, New York, and the United Light and Power company, Chicago, major utility holding company systems which control Wisconsin utilities.

The SEC seeks to confine operations of utility systems to single geographic areas unless it is shown to be in the public interest to have them wide-flung.

Although the Fox River Navigation company is indirectly controlled by North American, the Wisconsin transportation company has filed application for exemption. The Wisconsin-Michigan Power company which controls 26.5 per cent of the outstanding voting securities of the Fox River Navigation company, is, in turn, a subsidiary of North American. SEC officials state that hearings will be held in the future to determine the status of the transportation company in view of the proceedings now announced.

Following hearings, SEC officials explain, there will be a decision indicating whether the holding companies will be required to relinquish certain subsidiaries.

The North American company, with assets of about $1,247,500,000, serves communities in nine states with electricity and in seven states with gas. The United Light and Power company, with assets of $577,069,500, controls the Madison Gas and Electric company. It serves communities in eleven states with electricity and in twelve states with gas.

Third Man Arrested On Burglary Charge

Shawano — (AP) — Sheriff Carl Druckery announced today the arrest at Tripoli, Wis., of Harry Taylor, Green Bay, on a warrant charging burglary of a safe containing $3,200 from the home of John Fischer, Gresham, Sept. 27.

Two other men, Earl Sears, 42, Gresham and Clarence Usiak, 38, Pulaski, also have been arrested in connection with the Fischer burglary and are awaiting trial.

Sears and Usiak also are named in warrants charging burglary of a safe containing $1,800 from the home of Leo Weiler, Ozaukee county farmer and tavernkeeper, Aug. 27.

Beef Goes on List of British Rationed Food

London — (AP) — Butcher shops were piled high with extra supplies today to meet Britons' demands for their last unrationed weekend beef.

Beginning Monday, meat will go on the food ration list started nine weeks ago with bacon, butter and sugar. At present average prices, the weekly individual allowance of about 36 cents worth will buy one and three-quarters pounds of meat.

See House O. K. For Revision Of Wagner Act

Backers of Amendments Not Certain of Senate Approval

NEW BOARD LIKELY

Proposed Changes Referred to House Labor Committee

Washington—(AP)—Supporters predicted today that the Smith committee's proposals to amend the Wagner act would be passed by the house at this session, but they refused to guess whether the senate also would approve them.

"In my judgment, the house will accept the Smith amendments in toto," Representative Cox (D-Ga.), told reporters. "Once we get them up on the floor there will be much debate but they will go through."

Seventeen changes in the law were proposed Thursday by a majority of the special house investigating committee which spent three months studying the law's operation.

Major amendments would create a new national labor board and separate the board's present administrative and judicial functions.

The proposals were referred automatically to the house labor committee. That committee's chairman, Mrs. Mary T. Norton (D-N. J.), said last night that it would have been "much more honest" for the investigators to propose repeal of the Wagner act.

Criticizes Committee

Recalling that the Smith committee recently obtained a second $50,000 appropriation to continue its inquiry, Mrs. Norton suggested also that it would have been better for that group to withhold recommendations until its work was completed.

Representative Wood (D-Mo.), a member of the labor committee and president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, agreed with her and expressed the opinion that the Smith committee's program, if adopted, would have the effect of emasculating the law.

"I do not see how either the A. F. L. or the C. I. O. could agree to the Smith report, which proposes such a revolutionary change with reference to evidence, judicial authority and other vitals of the labor law," Wood declared.

Mrs. Norton announced a meeting of the labor committee next Wednesday to consider procedure.

State Income Tax To Show Big Gain

Barlow Estimates Payments Will be 25 Pct. Above Last Year's

Madison—(AP)—Preliminary reports compiled by Elmer Barlow, director of the state tax department, indicated today 25 per cent increase in income tax collections this year.

March 15 will be the first date for paying state income tax bills and if collections coincide with estimates the state will receive $1,875,000 more than was paid last year when returns amounted to about $7,500,000.

The 60 per cent income surtax, adopted on an emergency basis in 1935 and 1937 and continued by the last legislature, will yield extra receipts for the state general fund because of a lowering of exemptions.

The legislature reduced the exemptions from $25 and $10 for married and single persons to the level of the normal income tax law, which allows offsets of $17.50 and $8 respectively.

Along with its economy program the Heil administration has been counting on increased tax returns to help keep the budget in balance.

Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman reported today the general fund showed a balance of $7,000,000, which would permit payment of $5,300,000 in state highway aids due local governments. Zimmerman said the aids would be distributed next week.

School aids amounting to $5,249,650 are to be sent to county treasurers when the treasury balance is sufficient.

Nazi Foreign Minister Will Visit Pope; Italy Expected To Keep Neutrality Policy

Berlin—(AP)—Adolf Hitler will address the German nation at noon (5 a. m., C. S. T.) tomorrow—memorial day—it was announced officially today.

The ceremony will be held in the Berlin armory after which the fuehrer will lay a wreath on the cenotaph in memory of Germany's dead in this war and the World war.

Rome—(AP)—An informed Italian source said today Italy probably will retain her policy of non-belligerency after the visit here of German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

This informant said the visit, while "important," is not regarded by Italians as an occasion for alarm.

Adolf Hitler was believed in Italian circles to have taken the initiative in sending Von Ribbentrop, and diplomatic sources suspected he might be seeking Italy's aid in case of war in Scandinavia as a result of British-French help to Finland.

Vatican authorities, meanwhile, announced Pope Pius XII would receive the German foreign minister in private audience Monday.

Italians assumed that Von Ribbentrop's conversations with Premier Mussolini and Count Galeazzo Ciano Italian foreign minister, would cover the entire international situation, including the Finnish-Russian conflict, the Italian-British coal controversy and the possibility of war spreading to Scandinavia, the Balkans or the Near East.

See Nazi Pressure

Well-informed fascists expressed belief Germany was inclined to exert pressure on Russia to moderate her peace terms to Finland.

They also thought Britain and France had informed the Finns of aid they were prepared to furnish.

(Signs of allied readiness to extend further help to Finland were indicated today in London and Paris.)

Copenhagen dispatches to Italian newspapers reported the allies were pressing Sweden for permission to send troops through Swedish territory to Finland.

The fascist press charged the allies with attempting to prevent a Russian-Finnish armistice.

Informed fascists said that once the Russian terms and the prospects of increased French-British assistance to the Finns were known, the Finns would have to decide for themselves whether to accept the former or rely on the latter.

They had no confirmation of Berlin reports that former Finnish President Per Evind Svinhufvud was coming to Rome. It was said, in any case, such a visit would be postponed until after Von Ribbentrop's departure.

Perseverance Gets Wausau Youth Into Plenty of Trouble

Wausau —(AP)— Perseverance may be a good trait but it led to the arrest of Seth Trumbel, 18.

The youth pleaded guilty at his arraignment yesterday on a charge of operating a car without the owner's consent.

Sheriff Ralph Gunzel told Judge Frank B. Regner the boy told him this story.

Trumbel broke into a garage here and took a car for a joyride. The car got stuck in a snowbank. He went back to the garage and took out a wrecker. He backed the wrecker up to the first car. The wrecker also got stuck. He went back to the garage and took a milk truck to pull out the other cars. The milk truck likewise got stuck. He went back a fourth time and there was only one truck left. He took that, and, you guessed it, it too got stuck. He walked home.

When officials came to investigate someone mentioned seeing young Trumbel driving the third, or perhaps it was the fourth truck. His arrest followed.

He was ordered bound over to circuit court for sentencing under $300 bond.

Finds Milwaukee Man Is Guilty of Perjury

Milwaukee —(AP)— Herman D. Schwartz, 50, of Milwaukee, was convicted by Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy yesterday of perjury in bail bond proceedings, after a jury trial had been waived.

Judge Duffy suspended a sentence of six months and placed Schwartz on probation for a year when he pleaded that he had acted without intent to defraud.

United States Attorney B. J. Husting told the court that a "business property" which Schwartz had posted as worth $12,000 was found to be a vacant lot, assessed at $1,600.

Kansas City Chief of Police Is Indicted by Grand Jurors On Charges of Oppression

Kansas City, Mo. —(AP)— Police Chief Lear B. Reed was indicted by a Jackson county (Kansas City) grand jury today on charges of oppression in office.

Reed, a former federal bureau of investigation agent, became the head of Kansas City's reorganized police department recently after its control had been wrested from the Boss Tom Pendergast Democratic city organization and taken over by the state. The change had been demanded by Pendergast's arch Democratic rival, Governor Lloyd C. Stark.

Paul Barnett, lawyer, and Walter Bliss, former investigator for Governor Stark, also were indicted on charges of attempting to influence a grand jury.

Reed's indictment was based on the fingerprinting and photographing for the records of persons who had not been convicted of any crimes.

Reed succeeded Kansas City's last machine-sponsored police chief, Otto P. Higgins, now in Leavenworth federal penitentiary with Pendergast for income tax evasions.

The state legislature, after a bitter battle, changed the police department from city to state control at the urgent request of Governor Stark, who went up and down the state accusing Pendergast of running it in the interests of gamblers and underworld elements.

Reed instituted wholesale changes including numerous dismissals and demotions, which he said were in the interests of getting the department divorced from politics.

Negotiator in Berlin Or on Way to Red Capital

BATTLE RAGES

Helsinki Report Admits Soviet Gains in Strong Drive

London —(AP)— A reliable informant said tonight that Sweden had advised the British government that allied intervention in Finland, if it is sent, must be on a large scale or else Sweden will make every effort short of war to forestall the transport of allied troops across its frontiers.

On the other hand, this informant said that a considerable force, for instance a full army corps of around 80,000 men, would be "gratefully welcomed by the Swedes, especially if accompanied by ships and planes."

Stockholm—(AP)— Negotiations toward a Russian-Finnish peace appeared today, to have shifted to Moscow, with Sweden's role in the matter more or less finished.

Attention was centered on the whereabouts of Dr. Juhu Justi Paasikivi, Finnish negotiator who was reported to have left Stockholm and was believed already in Berlin, or enroute to Moscow.

Paasikivi led the Finnish delegation which unsuccessfully negotiated in Moscow before the war began Nov. 30.

There were rumors that Riga, Latvia, might be the center of final negotiations, and that a Finnish delegation already was enroute there to meet Soviet representatives.

These reports developed as efforts to settle the undeclared war in Finland drew speedily toward a climatic stage with the probable outcome still shrouded by indecision and official secrecy.

Sweden Not Mediator

It became known here that Russia had demanded—fulfillment of her terms before even accepting an armistice, however.

Although officially confirmed here that Sweden had acted as go-between for Russia and Finland in preliminary negotiations, there was strong insistence that the Stockholm government was in no way acting as mediator.

It was stated further that the initiative toward negotiations came from Russia and not Sweden; that this Scandinavian country did no more, in effect, than to lend its "front parlor" for establishing contacts and for presentation of Moscow's terms.

With the Russians and Finns now in touch with each other, it is believed any actual decision toward settlement will be made in Moscow or, possibly, Riga.

Look to Berlin

There was no evidence today that negotiations were continuing here, and Sweden, in common with Norway and Denmark, now looks to Berlin and Moscow for further developments.

In some quarters here, Germany is regarded the actual "behind-the-

School Teacher Slain; Suspect Is Under Arrest

Shoots Self When Posse Closes in Upon Him In Missouri

Shelbyville, Mo. — (AP) — An all-night hunt for the slayer of Mrs. Ethel Dingle, a school teacher, ended before noon today with the capture near here of a man Sheriff Elmer P. Threlkeld identified as Hadlay Eaton, her former suitor.

Surrounded in a heavily timbered section 3 miles northeast of the city by a posse of 50 officers and armed citizens, the suspect shot himself in the abdomen with a shotgun.

He was brought to a hospital at Shelbina where it was said he probably will live.

After shooting the attractive 30-year-old divorcee with a shotgun, the assailant drove his auto a short distance then fled into a dense woods on foot.

He approached Mrs. Dingle's automobile as she was preparing to leave school shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday and fired eight blasts into the machine. One shot struck and slightly wounded her companion, Mrs. Merritt Keith, also a teacher, and another grazed the arm of School Superintendent Clell Ledford, who was seated in another machine.

Darkness Delays Search

The sheriff and other officials trailed Eaton to the woods north of here, but because of darkness and the nature of the terrain delayed a search until this morning.

A small barn on the Harry Forman farm, three miles northeast of here, was burned about 4:30 a. m. today and Threlkkeld theorized Eaton had taken the following course since he vanished into the timber.

Worked east along the North river about five miles; cut south another five miles to where the barn was burned on a farm neighboring the home of Mrs. Dingle's mother; then continued on south and west towards more traveled roads.

Youngstown, Ohio — (AP) — The emancipation which caused the death of Mrs. Mary Zurko Saxon, 61, relief client, was due to a glandular condition that prevented her getting the full benefit of her food, her physician said today after a thorough study of the case. Mrs. Saxon's death was attributed to starvation in statements yesterday by two physicians who had attended her.

Three Killed in Auto-Train Crash

Two Others are Injured In Collision Near Wisconsin Rapids

Wisconsin Rapids — (AP) — Three persons were killed outright and two were injured in a collision today between an automobile and a gasoline-powered train near Vesper. The dead, all of Medford:

Mrs. L. D. Russell, 51; Elias L. Urquhart, 20, the car driver, and Mrs. Frank Perkins, 21. The injured, Miss Catherine Perkins, 24, and Miss Nancy Russell, 25.

The accident occurred about eight miles northwest of Wisconsin Rapids at a crossing of County Trunk M and tracks used jointly by the North Western and Soo Line railroads. The train was a North Western passenger train running between Marshfield and Fond du Lac.

The car was almost clear of the crossing when hit. It was thrown 65 feet and snapped off a telephone post. The two injured remained in the car.

Coroner P. E. Wright ordered an inquest. The five in the car were enroute to Juneau to visit Miss Perkins' sister.

Fond du Lac Man Is Sentenced for Fraud

Schmitz was charged with obtaining rare stamp collections on approval, selecting some stamps and returning the rest but failing to make any payments.

Constitutionality Test of Denison Dam Project Is Goal Of Oklahoma's Gov. Phillips

BY CHARLES J. WELLNER

Oklahoma City —(AP)— Oklahoma's governor, Leon C. Phillips, aggressive champion of state's rights, demanded today that the federal government halt work on the $54,000,000 Denison dam pending a test of the project's constitutionality.

Phillips said that if Secretary of War Woodring permitted construction work before a court decision he would take steps to stop it.

"We can bar the highways to prevent material reaching the dam or stop it in other ways by use of police, the court and everything."

He added he would not "need the militia."

The governor's demand came after an oil strike in the reservoir area promised to boom land values.

Army engineers are directing preliminary work on the big flood-control-hydro-electric project which would inundate 100,000 Oklahoma acres.

The governor in a letter to Woodring, recalled the United States supreme court's recent 4-4 split on the question of granting Oklahoma permission to file an original action to determine constitutionality of the act authorizing the Denison project.

"By an equally divided court," said Phillips, "leave to proceed originally in that tribunal was denied. No further judgment or order was entered and no opinion was rendered. We are, therefore, left just where we were before that proceeding was instituted. . . ."

"Oklahoma denies the constitutional authority of the United States . . . to condemn land or flood state property, or to use or interfere with the waters of the Red river or Washita river, Oklahoma streams, for the building of the Denison project."

Phillips added that Oklahoma intends "with all the means at its command, to protect its rights against what it is convinced will be an unlawful invasion and destruction."

Lay Groundwork For Presidential Candidate Battle

Intensive Campaigns Seen Before State Voters Go To Polls April 2

BY D. L. BRANNON

Milwaukee — (AP)—Supporters of presidential candidates entered in the Wisconsin delegate primary April 2 laid plans today for intensified campaigns during the next three weeks.

Although there was stumping by many of those who want to be delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions, much of the week's activity involved the laying of groundwork for the final drive.

On the whole campaign managers preferred to leave Milwaukee to aspirants for municipal offices. The city primary will be held next Tuesday, however, and with that out of the way the delegate race henceforth will receive more attention.

Backers of Thomas E. Dewey of New York, for the Republican nomination were cheered by announcement that he would visit Milwaukee March 29 for a speech at the auditorium and that he would tour the Fox river valley the next day. The announcement came from Dewey's New York headquarters.

Dewey adherents congratulated themselves on obtaining Theodore Roosevelt for a speech at Superior next Wednesday.

They expect to profit from Roosevelt's personal prestige but nevertheless are sending out a reminder that he is the brother of Kermit Roosevelt who is in England preparing to lead a fighting force into Finland against the Russians.

Here's the Angle

Dewey's men, figuring the angles, comment thus:

Teddy Roosevelt supports Dewey. His brother fights for the Finns. So northern Wisconsin Scandinavians should have a warm spot in their hearts for the New York district attorney.

Russell Sprague, Dewey's campaign manager, will be in Milwaukee next week to discuss vote-getting plans with the Wisconsin leaders.

Workers for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) also have summoned outside operators. William C. Bishop of Lansing, chairman of the Michigan Federation of Young Republicans arrived today for a speaking tour in behalf of delegate candidates pledged to the senator. Others probably will be announced shortly.

Vandenberg headquarters expressed doubt whether he would be able to visit the state because his duties on the senate finance committee necessitate his presence in Washington while congress is in session.

Like those pledged to Dewey, Vandenberg candidates were busy with speaking programs, those running in the state at large visiting each of the ten congressional districts for numerous meetings. District delegate hopefuls hammered away in their home bailiwicks.

Charles E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman, called members of the "officially endorsed Roosevelt-Farley" slate of Roosevelt candidates into conference at Oshkosh this afternoon to consider strategy and arrange a speaking program. All candidates for delegate-at-large will make extensive tours. Broughton had assurance from the party's speakers bureau that at least two nationally known figures would speak in behalf of the president at cities to be determined at the Oshkosh meeting.

'Deal" Is Reported

Of more interest was a reported deal, involving patronage, whereby the progressives would vote for the so-called Broughton slate. In this connection, it was recalled that the Progressives have fared well during the Roosevelt administration.

Asked whether he expects Progressive help for his group, Broughton answered "I hope we get it," and added 'I am confident that our ticket will win."

Broughton had an answer similarly cryptic when asked about the reported patronage understanding.

"I have the patronage privilege in Wisconsin now—have had it since F. Ryan Duffy's senate term expired," he said. "It is general practice for the national committeeman to make recommendations for postmaster appointments, etc. in states where his party is not represented in congress."

Meanwhile, the Roosevelt candidates known as the "state conference endorsed" slate carried on an educational campaign to acquaint the voters with the distinction between theirs and the Broughton ticket.

The conference endorsed group has taken a pledge to vote for President Roosevelt's re-nomination, or, should he decline to run, for anyone he designates. The Broughton candidates, their opponents assert, are not pledged to support the president's choice of a successor.

Francis McGovern, a conference endorsed candidate for delegate at large said in discussing the Broughton ticket:

"To me it looks as if the conservative Democrats are wooing one man but expect to marry the other, if in the meantime they do not meet still another who looks more promising."

Keller Campaigning

Here's an example of the pains taken to reach all the voters. McGovern and one of his running mates, Gustave Keller, president of the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, went into the railroad yards at Antigo yesterday to address trainmen as they changed shifts.

Equally busy were boosters of Vice-President John N. Garner.

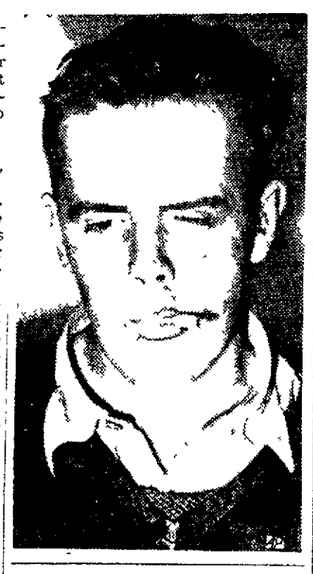
JUDY IS HOSTESS TO KIDNAP GUARDS



Unperturbed by an asserted kidnap plot against her, Judy Garland, 17-year-old movie star, is shown serving refreshments to Detectives J. A. Eversen (left) and L. F. Kidnap Plot Hoax, Youth Confesses

Admits Story Told to Police Nothing but Figment of Imagination

Los Angeles —(AP)— A 19-year-old youth has admitted, police say, that what was feared to be a plot to kidnap Judy Garland, young film star, was nothing but a figment of his imagination.

Police Psychiatrist Dr. Paul De River said that Robert Wilson, transient youth held on suspicion of kidnaping, told him he "just wanted to meet" the young actress.

Wilson was arrested Thursday night after officers said he telephoned police that Miss Garland would be kidnaped.

De River stated Wilson admitted that "a guy named Foster," with whom he insisted he had plotted the kidnaping, was fictitious.

Police Captain Grover Armstrong said that if the district attorney's office does not issue a kidnaping complaint the youth will be turned over to the psychopathic detail for observation.

Confidence was apparent in their ranks as they plugged for the anti-Roosevelt vote and kept an eye on the fight between the Roosevelt factions.

"I can't see anything but an excellent chance for Garner," said one spokesman. "I think our delegate candidates will go right down the middle of that Roosevelt fight. Garner is in the race regardless of whether the president runs for renomination. The other side doesn't know what the president is going to decide. We are not fighting Roosevelt, but boosting Garner and see in him the answer to those who want a Democratic administration but object to a third term."

Garner delegates planned to step up their campaign tempo next week with meetings in all parts of the state. Maurice J. Fitzsimons of Fond du Lac, candidate for delegate at large, was chosen to open a radio drive with a broadcast Monday from Sheboygan.

Favor Program for Standard Grades of Wisconsin Butter

Madison —(AP)— A program to establish standard grades for butter with a view of enabling consumers to select the highest quality product, was undertaken today by the state advisory committee of the butter industry.

Chairman William F. Groves of Lodi appointed E. C. Eckwright of Spooner, Archie Brovold of Ettrick and P. I. Henry of Viroqua as members of a special committee to study the plan.

The committee will seek help from the federal government in setting up national grades and will consider the advisability of having the state department of agriculture adopt a Wisconsin brand for butter made at creameries cooperating in the state's quality improvement program.

The advisory committee said grading would make possible the marketing of only the best butter under a national advertising program contemplated by the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association.

Two other committees were named to assist in the agriculture department's dairy promotion and quality improvement activities. Members are Bryce Landt of Wisconsin Dells, F. J. Higgins of Richland Center, R. H. Wunsch of Shawano, Richard Spears of Cameron, Guy Taylor of Darlington and Charles F. Kellogg of Clayton.

Cooperatives Will be Discussed at Meeting

Cooperative officers and managers about a year ago named a committee to study the possibility of forming a county cooperative council and the meeting Tuesday is being sponsored by the committee, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

Welles Could be Gathering Information to Help Guide Course of Democratic Party

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY

Washington — (AP)—If Mr. Welles' journey to Europe should develop any hope for peace in the near future, the men who sent him over there would be the most surprised people in the world.

For, as the trip develops, it is becoming more and more apparent that most any basis for peace agreeable to Germany, would also mean that the allies, by the same token, would lose the war.

The reasons are these:

1. The allies succeeded last fall in mobilizing their military and economic man power without losing a man.

2. That mobilization itself was the first real "victory" of the war, and you could have knocked over the German high command with a feather when they saw it completed, without internal trouble in France or Britain.

3. Any peace short of complete submission of Germany would mean the demobilization of the allied economic and military machinery without gaining the objectives required by their declaration of war.

4. It follows that President Roosevelt, admittedly sympathetic with the allied cause, would not press for a peace that would embarrass the allies by forcing them to turn down the plan and thereby take upon themselves the responsibility of deliberate continuance of the war.

5. It also follows that any peace plan acceptable to Germany would at least recognize part of the aggressions of the nazis in Czechoslovakia and Poland, and, to that extent, place the benediction of the United States on the doctrine that might makes right. That is exactly opposite to the sermons President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have been preaching for three years.

Answers Wanted

Mr. Welles' trip to Europe, therefore, must mean that President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, and the American government in general don't have any of the answers on the war. Their information from abroad must be conflicting, sparse, and obviously erroneous in many respects.

It also means that the Roosevelt administration does not want to go into a critical campaign year, and a critical period in history without doing its utmost to make some sense out of the European struggle from the American point of view.

Mr. Welles is without question the sharpest diplomatic tack in the state department. In the past he has often been able to find out the answers to tough questions, more by what other people didn't say, or do, than by what they did say, or did do.

It is possible, he may be able to get more out of what Hitler, Chamberlain, Daladier, and their satellites don't tell him, than by what they do.

Political Angle

Maybe Mr. Roosevelt will find out from Mr. Welles how serious the clash on the other side of the water this spring will be.

(1) Whether there may be a world holocaust, and a public demand for a third term.

Or (2) whether the war will wallow along in its economic trough, and Americans will turn entirely to domestic affairs.

Or maybe Mr. Welles won't be able to figure out the answers.

Either way, Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull will be able to tell themselves that they have done everything they can to help guide the course of the American ship of state in critical times—and incidentally, to steer the course of the Democratic party.

For Mr. Welles' trip is building up for the president the political answer to a political cry—"he is leading us toward war." In naming Myron Taylor as personal ambassador to the Vatican, and in sending Mr. Welles to Europe, Mr. Roosevelt is incidentally making it possible for his supporters to chirp in reply, "No; he tried to lead the world toward peace."

Challenges Colleges to Provide More Intellectual Stimulation

Challenging modern colleges to make certain that each student is stimulated to the maximum of his potentialities, Dr. Charles D. Flory, associate professor of education at Lawrence college, in an article entitled "Intellectual Growth of College Students" in the February Journal of Education Research, states that "at least some of the students who are admitted to college are a long way from intellectual maturity and therefore need careful guidance which will result in maximum development."

Recent evidence shows that intellectual growth continues through the "teen age" and well into the twenties, Dr. Flory writes. He states that a study of Lawrence college students reveals a large majority of them improved in intellectual ability during college years and that there appears to be no relationship between the amount of intellectual gain and the field in which the student majors. No matter in what field the student pursues his work, there is room for intellectual growth.

Dr. Flory wrote, "It would appear from the results of this study that colleges might well afford to spend more time considering the problems involved in giving students real intellectual stimulation and less time counting hours and credits and arranging for supposedly desirable course combinations."

The Lawrence survey showed that of those students who were graduated from the college, one-fourth were in the upper 10 per cent for college students nationally when they entered. At the time of their senior year, one-half of the class was in the upper 10 per cent and one fourth in the upper 4 per cent.

Northern Cities Protest Removal Of Road Offices

Heil Backs Proposals to Cut Down Administrative Costs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Upstate spokesmen who have been looking for evidence that the Heil administration may back down in its plans to reorganize highway and tax department field services were disappointed today. Governor Heil, it appeared, is prepared to back to the limit proposals of Elmer Barlow, tax commissioner, and August Frey, director of research, to cut down administrative costs by reducing the number of income tax and highway field offices in the state which have aroused a storm of protest in the localities affected.

Resentment over the proposed elimination of four highway offices in Rhinelander, Lancaster, Milwaukee and Eau Claire this week exceeded the criticism evoked by Barlow's announced plan of reducing income tax offices.

Superior, Lancaster, Rhinelander and other cities have filed formal protests, while highway officials of municipalities and counties paraded into the governor's office yesterday to argue personally against the changes.

"It's the same old story," said one of the highest figures in the administration after the hearing given a delegation of 25 northern representatives who appeared to oppose the dissolution of the Rhinelander highway division. "We promised economy, and they supported it, until it began to affect them personally. Now they come in to claim that we're ruining northern Wisconsin."

Estimate Savings

Frey has estimated that the elimination of the four highway offices will save $200,000 a year. Barlow estimates an annual saving of $70,000 through his field force reorganization.

Frey yesterday revealed for the first time, in an official statement, the exact status of the Green Bay division under his proposal for a reorganization. Previous reports had been patched together from unofficial reports at the capitol.

The office now has an area covering 10 counties, Brown, Outagamie, Kewaunee, Manitowoc, Calumet, Winnebago, Shawano, Oconto, Marinette and Dorr.

Under the new setup the county will lose Shawano county to the central district with headquarters at Wisconsin Rapids, but it will gain Forest, Florence, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac counties, thus having a total of 13 in the eastern and northeastern sections.

It will be the second biggest district in the state, the Madison district comprising 14 counties. According to estimates of the administration, it will be allotted about $1,100,000 in construction funds for state trunk highway work during the forthcoming season, or about 20 per cent of the state total.

Connecticut G.O.P. Revival Might be Example to Party

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Unless you are in Republican politics you may not have heard of Sam Pryor, Jr., who is retiring as Connecticut's Republican national committeeman at the age of 42. But he has left his mark in the form of a rejuvenated Republican party in his state.

Mr. Pryor took over the moth-eaten Republican party in Connecticut, which had degenerated into senility during the long regime of the late Boss J. Henry Roraback. Connecticut voters finally caught up with the party and threw it out.

Clapper

A young businessman, official of a number of large corporations, Mr. Pryor saw a chance to bring the Republican party back to life, and in 1937 he stepped in as national committeeman. The following year things began to happen.

Connecticut Republicans put on a state convention the like of which had not been seen for years. Speaker after speaker declared it was the first unbossed convention the party had held in years. Mr. Pryor even flirted with the idea of nominating for governor on the Republican ticket Jasper McLevy, the celebrated Socialist mayor of Bridgeport. But McLevy refused to abandon his Socialist label and on sober second thought it was deemed best to stick to members of the Republican party, so Socialist McLevy was passed over with bouquets.

The party nominated for governor Raymond Baldwin, a foe of the old Roraback machine who pledged himself against the arbitrary use of injunctions in labor disputes, and in favor of maximum-hour and minimum-wage legislation and interstate compacts to abolish child labor and sweatshops. Governor Baldwin of late has been conducting a re-employment campaign which has attracted national attention, and has succeeded in demonstrating that one does not have to be anti-business to foster adequate social legislation.

That Republican convention did something else equally notable for Connecticut Republicans. For United States senator it nominated John A. Danaher, now in his early 40s like Governor Baldwin and Mr. Pryor. Mr. Danaher as a lawyer handled many cases for labor and championed labor legislation. His father now is labor commissioner of Connecticut. New in the senate, Mr. Danaher already is recognized as one of the comers, a man of exceptional ability and inclined toward the progressive side of the party.

Difficult for Party to Shake Off Old Leaders

The success of the Republican party in Connecticut, in making its comeback with two progressive candidates like Governor Baldwin and Senator Danaher, shows how quickly public confidence can be recovered when the party puts forward candidates of ability who have something to offer. There have been enough instances like Connecticut's to demonstrate that the public is ready to vote for candidates who can be expected to offer better administration and give more encouragement to business without scuttling protective reforms.

Sam Pryor was able to steer the Republican party in Connecticut along this route, and this experience is a rather complete object lesson for the party nationally.

But it is difficult for the party to shuck off the old leadership. For instance Charles D. Hilles, long New York's national committeeman, retired a few years ago. He was in the higher councils of the party along with Connecticut's Roraback; he sat in the Taft cabinet and was Taft's national chairman. When he retired, Kenneth Simpson, a modernized Republican took over.

But they wouldn't let Mr. Hilles stay retired. He was made treasurer of the Republican national committee on arrangements, a post not to be confused with that recently taken by Ernest T. Weir, who is chairman of the finance committee. The Hilles post is an "honorary" one, it is explained, but one which will mean handling nearly $200,000 in national-convention expenses and one that in general puts Mr. Hilles back inside the ring.

Thus, in the proud words of an Ohio Republican congressman, "Forward to normalcy."

No. 3. Resolution of the Manitowoc County Board read. (Distribution of cheese and surplus commodities).

RESOLUTION CONCERNING THE PURCHASE OF WISCONSIN CHEESE BY THE FEDERAL SURPLUS COMMODITIES CORPORATION

To the Honorable Chairman and Board of Supervisors of Manitowoc County, Wisconsin.

Gentlemen: Whereas, a report of the purchases of Wisconsin farm produce by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation during the fiscal year 1938-1939 indicates that there were no purchases of Wisconsin cheese and butter, and

Whereas, it is believed that the supply of Wisconsin cheese is such as to warrant its purchase as a surplus commodity, and

Whereas, Wisconsin cheese is a particularly beneficial food, the distribution of which to the underprivileged in all parts of the country will create potential consumer demands and assist in moving larger quantities through normal channels of trade, Now, Therefore,

Be It Resolved By the Board of Supervisors of Manitowoc County, Wisconsin, That the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation be strongly urged to add Wisconsin cheese to its purchases of commodities, and

Be It Further Resolved That the County Clerk be instructed to send copies of this resolution, when adopted by the Honorable Board, to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, to the County Clerks of all other Wisconsin counties and to all of the United States Senators and Members of Congress from Wisconsin.

Respectfully submitted,
Ferdinand M. Schneider, Chas. Achenbach.

State of Wisconsin, Manitowoc County, ss

I, Albert W. Tetzlaff, County Clerk of Manitowoc County, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing resolution is a true and correct copy of the original resolution required by law to be in my custody and which was adopted by the County Board at a meeting held on the 18th day of November, 1939.

Albert W. Tetzlaff, County Clerk.

Same was referred to the Resolutions Committee and District Attorney and they to report at this session.

No. 4. Resolution of Marathon County board read. (Regarding elementary school system).

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors for Marathon County:

Whereas, the free Elementary public school system where any American child may obtain an education at public expense, is one of the bulwarks of our Great American Democracy;

And, Whereas, For many years past, legislation has been continually enacted which tends to localize the Elementary school system and the cost thereof, which legislative tendency, if continued, will circumvent the theory of our free, American Elementary public school system;

And Whereas, the present system of payment of tuition for non-resident Elementary School pupils results in the system of double taxation for Municipalities having resident pupils attending school in Municipalities other than the one of their residents; and results in a double benefit to the Municipality wherein such non-resident pupils attend school;

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Marathon County Board of Supervisors, that the legislative and executive branches of our State Government be requested to repeal those sections of the Revised Statutes of the State of Wisconsin which require Municipalities to pay non-resident tuition for Elementary School pupils of such Municipalities who attend Elementary schools in places other than their residence; and particularly be requested to enact legislation which will re-establish the American System of Free Elementary Public Schools.

Be It Further Resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the County Clerk of Marathon County to our legislative representatives, to the Hon. Julius P. Heil, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, and to the County Clerk of the various counties within the State of Wisconsin.

Martin Knab.

State of Wisconsin, County of Marathon, ss

I, E. H. Kuhlman, County Clerk in and for said county, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of a resolution adopted by the Marathon County Board of Supervisors on January 19, 1940.

E. H. Kuhlman, County Clerk, Marathon Co., Wis.

Same was referred to the Educational Committee, District Attorney and Resolutions Committee.

No. 5. Resolution of the Winnebago County Board read. (Veteran Mental Hospital).

Whereas, there are approximately 800 Wisconsin World War Veterans who are mental patients, and the only Veteran Mental Hospital in the State of Wisconsin is at Mendota, which is a Veterans Facility on State-leased property, with a bed capacity of approximately 300, and

Whereas, this means that there are approximately 500 Wisconsin Veteran Mental Patients who are being hospitalized outside of the State, and

Whereas, Veteran Organizations throughout the State are working to have the State of Wisconsin donate a tract of land on which the government has indicated it would erect a new building, which eventually would result in Every Wisconsin Veteran Mental Patient being treated in this State.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Board of Supervisors of Winnebago County, that they go on record as requesting the State to donate a tract of land, suitably located, and sufficient in size, to erect a hospital for Wisconsin Veterans who are mental patients.

Be It Further Resolved, that the County Clerk of Winnebago County be and he hereby is instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Governor of the State of Wisconsin, the Assemblymen from the First and Second Districts, and our State Senator, Frank B. Keefe, Joshua L. Johns, Congressman, Eighth District, John Schaefer, Congressman, Fourth District, and to the County Clerk of each county in the state.

Dated November 20, 1939.

Submitted by: Howard N. Howe, Van E. Jackson, Ed G. Sonnenberg, Frank Bartlett.

State of Wisconsin, County of Winnebago, ss

I hereby certify the above and foregoing to be a true and fully copy of Resolution No. 48 adopted by the Winnebago County Board of Supervisors at their Annual November Session on November 28, 1939.

No. 7. Petition of illegal taxes of E. P. Boland read.

December 29, 1939.

Clerk of Outagamie County, Appleton, Wisconsin

Dear Sir: I am enclosing herewith a petition addressed to the County Board to cancel Certificate No. 3895 for the Tax Sale of 1938 for the taxes of 1937 on the ground that same is an illegal assessment. Will you kindly have this petition referred to the proper committee so that I can get this matter straightened out? Lot 21 belongs to Bert C. Shilling and Lot 22 to Mary Silverwood, being two separate and distinct ownerships and not assessable as one piece of property.

I have endeavored to get Silverwoods to pay their proportion, which I have been unable to do. We are ready, able and willing to pay our proportion, and want to pay it, and therefore request that the certificate be cancelled.

Respectfully yours,
E. P. Boland.

PETITION

The Honorable Chairman and Members of the County Board of Outagamie County

Gentlemen: I hereby petition your Honorable Body to cancel Tax Certificate No. 3895 for the Sale of 1938 Tax of 1937 assessed against Lots 21 and 22 in Section 33, Township 24, Range 19 East, Town of Oneida, Outagamie County.

The reason I ask that this certificate be cancelled is that it is an illegal assessment for the reason that Lot 21 belongs to Bert C. Schilling and Lot 22 to Mary Silverwood, being two separate and distinct ownerships, and not assessable as one piece of property.

Respectfully submitted,
E. P. Boland, Agent for Bert. C. Schilling.

Same was referred to the Illegal Tax Committee and District Attorney.

January 12, 1940.

Mr. John E. Hantschel, County Clerk, Outagamie County, Appleton, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir: This is to acknowledge receipt of certified copy of a resolution adopted by the Outagamie County Board at a special session on January 3, 1940, requesting that the county trunk highway extending from a point near McCarthy's Crossing to the intersection with U. S. Highway No. 10 at Badger Avenue in the City of Appleton, which was formerly a portion of old U. S. Highway No. 41, be made a part of the State Trunk Highway System.

In reply we wish to state that this department has no authority to add any mileage to the State Trunk Highway System except under authority of Chapter 420, Laws of 1939. If it is desired that action to make the road in question a part of the State Trunk Highway System be taken under this chapter, we believe that the petition of the county board should so state. We, therefore, suggest that if the county does want to petition under this chapter, a new resolution be adopted and forwarded to this department which will then make the necessary investigation.

Very truly yours.

Whereas, it is believed that the supply of Wisconsin cheese and butter is such as to warrant its purchase as a surplus commodity, and

Whereas, Wisconsin cheese and butter is a particularly beneficial food, the distribution of which to the underprivileged in all parts of the country will create potential consumer demands and assist in moving larger quantities through normal channels of trade. Now, Therefore,

Be It Resolved by the Board of Supervisors of Outagamie County, Wisconsin, That the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation be strongly urged to add Wisconsin cheese and butter to its purchases of commodities, and

Be It Further Resolved that the County Clerk be instructed to send copies of this resolution, when adopted by the Honorable Board, to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation and to all of the United States Senators and Members of Congress from Wisconsin.

To the Honorable County Board of Outagamie County, Wis.

Gentlemen: Whereas, there are approximately 800 Wisconsin World War Veterans who are mental patients, and the only Veteran Mental Hospital in the State of Wisconsin is at Mendota, which is a Veterans Facility on State leased property, with a bed capacity of approximately 300, and

Whereas, this means that there are approximately 500 Wisconsin Veteran Mental Patients who are being hospitalized outside of the state, and

Whereas, Veteran Organizations throughout the state are working to have the State of Wisconsin donate a tract of land on which eventually would result in every Wisconsin Veteran Mental Patient being treated in this state.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, by the Board of Supervisors of Outagamie County, that they go on record as requesting the State to donate a tract of land, suitably located, and sufficient in size, to erect a hospital for Wisconsin Veterans who are mental patients.

No. 46. Resolution of the County Highway Committee read. (Annexing old U. S. Highway 41 to state trunk system).

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Outagamie County, Wis.

Gentlemen: Whereas, the highway extending from a point near McCarthy's crossing to the city limits of the city of Appleton, which was formerly a portion of Highway "41," was annexed and made a part of the present County Trunk Highway System of Outagamie County, and

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the County Board hereby petitions the State Highway Commission of Wisconsin under Chapter 420, Laws of 1939, to annex and make a part of the present State Trunk Highway system of the State of Wisconsin, that highway extending from a point near McCarthy's crossing to the intersection of U. LORK PECKSNIFF HAW HAW

Every night at 9 o'clock the German radios are turned toward England and a soft, smooth Oxford accent delivers a message of the Reich to the English people.

There has been much speculation on "the tight little Island" concerning the person who broadcasts for Hitler but he has been dubbed "Lord Pecksniff Haw Haw, the phoney peer from Zeesen," and is certainly as well known in England as Charlie McCarthy is in America.

When the war started Lord Haw Haw started. But his first broadcasts in their high passion and denunciation were very pleasing to the British authorities because they recognized them as a help in whipping English feelings into a hot war like flood. The Germans quickly changed this attitude and method however and began playing to under statement instead of exaggeration which meets the English conception of fair play.

In considering this novel situation which the radio has developed we should be struck first by the fact that instead of putting people in concentration camps for listening to the German broadcasts English periodicals from one end of the Island to the other daily discuss the previous evening's broadcast and conduct a sort of running debate with Lord Haw Haw, denying his claims or explaining his assertations or criticising his facts.

The German government does not dare permit its people to listen to an English broadcaster. It has gone to extreme lengths to prevent German ears from hearing foreign claims. It has not only threatened punishment to those who listen but it has contrived and sold a radio to the great mass of the people that cannot pick up outside broadcasts.

While the impartial judge of this war must give the Hitler government considerable credit for the restraint and cleverness with which it has conducted its affairs, doubt may be fairly expressed whether clapping ear muffs on Fritz isn't a great blunder.

The English attitude must be the attitude of democracy. For the present at least London would feel abased if it employed some of the methods that tyrants use with unblushing countenance. But the extent to which a democracy should willingly open its doors to propaganda from its armed enemy may be one of the things which the outcome of this war will decide.

In many places democracy has collapsed or been stricken to the ground because it was too easy going, too willing to permit wide open discussion of its affairs even as it did during one of its own elections. A malignant enemy may use this chance to falsify, distort and villify. War works strange results with men. It inflames and warps their judgment. Democracy finds it necessary to cast aside or limit many of its privileges during war in order to gain the required efficiency to fight successfully.

Whatever the outcome concerning the fluid voice of Lord Haw Haw we must give England credit for refusing to go into a panic over a nightly speech from the German lines.

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST

The home coming of our noble President after fighting the battle of Panama was appropriately celebrated by a majestic dinner of delicate and exotic foods and beverages.

With the cavier from the Volga was punctiliously served a thirty-year old sherry straight from Portugal. With the terrapin was poured a glass of 1928 Chablis, and it is proper here to emphasize that 1928 was a "good wine year." When the pheasant, nicely browned and stuffed with wild rice, was placed upon the groaning board a Pommard of 1923 was opened. That was another great wine year and Burgundy has the body and color to wash down game in appropriate fashion. With the salad came champagne, not the over-commercialized Mumm but the classy, elegant and haughty Heidsick. It may have seemed like a come-down to take a mere benedictine with the ice cream and perhaps it was an anti-climax but there was a choice between that and a green creme de menthe, and besides tradition still holds sway over what shall accompany the demi-tasse.

Meanwhile as our pompous lords held high the bumpers and quaffed each other's health, the migrants in California were being washed out of the river beds in which they had camped and the share croppers all through the southland were huddled around way side roads wondering how much thinner their meals and clothes had to become before they would be worse off than "illy clad and illy fed."

ANOTHER BAD BARGAIN

A group of northern Wisconsin county chairmen who have organized to discuss common problems in the cut-over region of the state have adopted a resolution severely censuring the policy of the state government in pro-rating state funds for forest crop aids, says a dispatch from Rhinelander.

This instance of the forest crop appropriation is but one of the many called to public attention by local spokesmen recently.

Some years ago the legislature adopted what was, everything considered, a sensible and economical conservation project in the forest crop law. It opened a way for counties to dispose of their huge holdings of tax delinquent lands by creating county forests. It furnished valuable encouragement to private forest operators by relieving them of heavy real estate taxation on holdings which would not be productive for years to come.

In essence, the law provided that the owner of forest lands entered under the forest crop law—if they qualified under standards set up by the conservation department—would be required to pay only a nominal tax of 10 cents an acre. The state, according to its bargain, would reimburse the county for the land thus removed from the property tax roll by contributing another ten cents an acre. The state, in return for that investment, would share in the proceeds of the forest lands at the time of harvest through a severance tax scheme.

But in the years since, everybody has lived up to the agreement except the state government, which invented the idea in the first place. Counties are not taxing the forest crop lands, and are thus deprived of sizeable amounts of revenue which those in the north, especially, badly need. Owners are paying their severance taxes at the agreed rate, and will continue to do so.

But the state, after several years of pro-rating, this year will pay only 5½ cents an acre, it has been announced, instead of the 10 cents agreed upon. Not for half, a dozen years has the stipulated amount been paid.

The counties have become impatient, and understandably. The northern representatives have here put their fingers on the cause of much of the bickering and bad feeling between the courthouses and city halls of Wisconsin and the state capitol in recent years. The repeated failure of the state to keep its word in its contracts with its local units has fostered the organization of city officials and county boards into pressure groups, battling for what they believe are their rights in legislative halls in competition with assorted varieties of privately employed lobbyists.

So today we have the spectacle of city councils and county boards voting annual appropriations for memberships in state associations of local governments, the primary function of which is to plead their cases before the legislature and state departments. The incongruity of having real estate taxpayers, the supporters of local government, paying professional lobbyists to try to win financial favors from the state government, supported by the income, inheritance, liquor, gasoline—and property taxpayers—apparently is too obvious to win much notice or interest.

Prime cause for such a ridiculous development is the habit of the legislature in promising, and then failing to deliver, the constant authorization of new forms of public expenditures without the willingness to pay for them.

If it is sound state policy to encourage forestry by the forest crop law, the state should pay its agreed share. If the state cannot afford to do so, that fact should be acknowledged promptly and publicly, and the forest crop statute should be repealed. It is absurd to believe that the law can operate effectively on the present basis.

NAZI SUPREMACY

The various "liar's clubs" which hold annual contests in this country exploit and brag of their ability to tell tall tales, but they over-rate themselves. Their best efforts would be no competition whatsoever in some parts of the world. For instance, if they were to enter a contest in Germany, the nazi boys would walk away with all the ribbons without any effort.

What tall tale ever told over here could stand up to the recent statement of Otto Dietrich, chief of Germany's press department, that readers of the government gagged German press are the best informed in the world!

That's fairly tall, but the nazi can do even better when pressed. In fact, their only competition for the title of world's champion liars comes from Russia. Stalin's stooges are pretty good, too.

Compared to the yarns that the nazi and the reds are spinning these days Paul Bunyan would sound like an old maid discussing the virtues of weak tea.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

Washington—This is the story of a lovely symbol of the modern Girl Friday—Peggy Dowd, who a few days ago married her brain-truster boss, Tommy Corcoran, and thereby brought to many persons in and out of Washington a breathing spell for as long as she can keep him away skiing on their honeymoon.

It's a romance as colorful as the eventful career of the curly-haired bridegroom.

In Washington, Peggy Dowd is always associated with the brain-trust. But long before there was a brain-trust or the world had ever heard of Tommy Corcoran, Peggy Dowd was holding down an important job. She was the personal secretary of one of the big men of the Hoover administration, Gardner Cowles, owner of The Des Moines Register and Tribune and director of the RFC.

It was a very pleasant job and Peggy thought her boss was a grand man. But her only interest in government was prom-hopping with dashing Annapolis midshipmen.

About this time there came to the RFC a young lawyer as Irish as herself. Peggy would see him now and then rushing along the corridors, but she never talked to him, for it was rumored in RFC feminine circles that he thoroughly disliked women, thought they had been put on earth only to get in the way of men's work.

DEATH ON SECRETARIES

Girls frankly were afraid to work for Tom Corcoran. He had come down to Washington from a big Wall street law firm, and just could not get used to the deliberate civil service ways of government. He considered dictating to a shorthand book a waste of time, insisted that his secretary "take it down" on the typewriter as he talked—and he talked a blue streak.

Secretaries came to his office and departed like the days. None ever stayed longer than a week. There was a ladies' room legend, which persisted though Corcoran denied it, that he had once jerked a phone right out of its socket and tossed it at a secretary who insisted on going home at 3 o'clock in the morning. His constant cry to the head stenographer was for a male secretary.

The morning after Director Cowles, Peggy's boss, resigned and left for Iowa, the head stenographer, faced with her daily headache of finding a secretary for Corcoran (she called it the "suicide assignment"), summoned Peggy Dowd and said gently, "Report, please, to Mr. Corcoran."

"Oh, no," said Peggy, "not me. There are other jobs in this world."

"For my sake, please try it for a few days," pleaded the head stenographer. "After all, he's Irish and you're Irish and you can handle him if anyone can. Just don't argue with him. Let him do things the way he wants to, even if they do seem crazy. Who knows, perhaps there is a method in his madness."

BOY MEETS GIRL

So Peggy went up to the lion's den. In a short while Corcoran's buzzer rang and Peggy went in.

"Get this telegram off right away," he ordered, without looking up or giving her time to sit down. Then for two minutes he reeled off a long wire so fast that Peggy didn't even get the start of it. For a few moments she stood there helpless; then, with a jerk of her head, she started for the door to tell the head stenographer it was "no go."

As Peggy turned, there burst into the room one of the Harvard Law school boys, J. Raburn ("Food") Monroe, now a successful New Orleans lawyer and a power in the new anti-Long group, who flashed a telegram before Corcoran.

"That changes everything," Corcoran shouted to Peggy. "Kill that wire I just gave you."

So Peggy just walked back to her desk, pretending she had the wire but was not going to send it. The fortuitous interruption had saved her. And today Peggy has one extra name among her patron saints. The name is St. "Food."

A "LITTLE JOB"

The first crisis thus survived so fortunately, Peggy decided to test her luck further. At 7 o'clock that night, Corcoran nonchalantly instructed, "Go out and get something to eat and meet me at the apitol in the legislative counsel's office at 7:30. We've got a little job to do tonight, won't take more than an hour or so."

It took most of the allotted half hour just to get to the capitol, but Peggy was there on time. And there she met two other turbines of the brain-trust, Ben Cohen and Jim Landis, later to become SEC chairman and dean of Harvard Law School.

"The little job" was something about a "securities bill" which had to be ready for a congressional committee the next morning. It was 4 a.m. when she pulled the last sheet out of the typewriter and the three men, after a critical reading, pronounced it "okay."

"Yes," added Corcoran with a cheery smile, "that's a swell job, Miss. What did you say your name was?"

"Margaret Dowd."

"Well, Margaret Dowd, tomorrow morning you tell the head stenographer that I said you'll do."

GIRL FRIDAY

Thus Peggy Dowd got her start as the Girl Friday of the brain trust, and began seven years of thrilling work carried on at about the same hectic tempo as her first day. Side by side with Corcoran, Cohen, Landis, Douglas, Jackson, Foley, Rowe, Dempsey, Rogge and others of the "family," she went through the epochal legislative battles of the New Deal—the securities act, the federal housing bill, the fierce TVA clashes, the tremendous holding company fight, the wage-hour bill, the historic supreme court struggle, the Jackson-Ickes offensive against monopoly.

She was in the thick of them all, always in the background but always on hand, the confidential secretary of these confidential men-at-arms of the president. It meant no parties, no planning for a week or even a day ahead. Every waking hour was devoted to the job. And Peggy thrived under it all.

Whether it was because she and Tom Corcoran were falling in love, Peggy became more and more beautiful. In the last few years she has been conceded to be one of the most beautiful women in Washington.

BEAUTIFUL PEGGY

Exquisitely attired, a honey-colored blonde, with big grey-green eyes ("Vicien Leigh eyes" Corcoran calls them), and a delicate complexion that her favorite pink camellias light up beautifully, she was the prettiest picture in working Washington. At the occasional play they went to, all eyes turned toward Peggy Dowd. But if the onlookers got an eyeful, they never got an earful.

For one of the most amazing things about this very amazing young lady is that, flattered, courted and cajoled by everyone seeking the inside lowdown, no one has ever been known to get anything out of her—except when Tom Corcoran for his own devious purposes wanted something to "get out."

But there was one secret that Peggy did "spill." She whispered it to her mother at the wedding party, just before she and Tom slipped out of town on their skiing honeymoon. It was this: That the last man who kissed her before Tom Corcoran gave her his bridal kiss at the altar of the little church in Leesburg, Va., was the president of the United States.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—It's a long leap from the banks of the river Clyde in Scotland to the swivel chair of the congressional gymnasium office, especially if a fellow makes most of the importants ports of call along the way.

Grover

But Pete Henderson made it—after a fashion.

Not that Pete isn't a vast success. He is. But he doesn't like swivel chairs. They always tip him back too far. Then Pete's got a pretty bad disease for a swivel chair worker.

"The wanderin' foot," you might call it," says Pete, eyeing a vivid print of the Queen Mary on the wall. She was built near his home town.

Invents A Game

Nobody knows the title of Pete's job. The high-falutin' way would be to call him the physical attache to Congressmen. A plain everyday title would be "gym attendant." He's really neither—and both. He simply attends to congressmen's locker room wants, helps them exercise, and keeps them from overdoing it.

Back in 1921, it meant not a tinker's dam to Pete Henderson when Congressman Jim Mead from Buffalo got up and addressed congress for one minute on health. But out of that speech, through slow and painful processes, grew the present gymnasium in the basement of the new office building.

Pete didn't show up in Washington until 1933, a victim of the depression. Pete's California congressman got him a 10-day job raking capitol leaves. Then the maintenance department sicked him on the plumbing.

By that time the gym had simmered down to a five-man gang of volley-ball players. One of them spied Pete, and made him equipment keeper-upper. Soon he was playing volley ball with them; his reputation was made for life when he invented the congressional game of "paddle ball." It's the easy way to play handball on Capitol Hill.

In '35 the new House office building was going up, so the gym gang and the capitol physician, Dr. George Calver, joined forces and wangled a part of the basement for a physiotherapy room. Aided and abetted by Pete, Representative Mead and his daily dozeners worked up dues to buy equipment.

Now they've got 110 active members, each of whom subscribes to Dr. Calver's Health rule No. 3, tacked on the gym wall:

"Drink plentifully (OF WATER.)"

Thirty-nine, blue-eyed, tall and a bit stooped, Pete's had more ups and downs than a circus acrobat. Born in Scotland, he took to the sea—an adventure that gave him his wanderin' foot. But he really wanted to come to America, so he learned the automobile trade and worked in Paterson, N. J., Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Santa Fe, N. M. When the World War broke out, he joined the American army and fought in France.

Pete's the most easy-tempered kind of fellow you'll ever meet. Only one thing burns him up—people who think congressmen are living the life of Roman bathers when they try to take care of their health.

A magazine printed a picture of a congressman in one of Pete's bathtubs, and captioned it "Asleep in the Deep." That was just too much.

"These congressmen pay for all their own equipment. Every last piece of it is their personal property. Some of it is second hand because we can't afford first class stuff. These aren't Roman baths; they're places where a congressman can relax right and keep himself fit. Of all the deaths this year, not a member of the gymnasium has passed away. Why—"

Pete would go on forever defending his charges if you'd let him. All you have to do, really, to prove what he's sayinig is sneak down to the gym any day. You'd be surprised how many congressmen take their health seriously, and obey Dr. Calver's Rule No. 3 about drinking water.

Pete took his first vacation last year. He and his wife went to Scotland to visit his old home. They had a thrilling ride on a "marked" vessel through the war zone.

"'Twas good for my wanderin' foot," says Pete. "It don't itch any more."

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

If Edwin Markham's poem had been called "The Man With the Sword" how fitting today would be these lines:

"O masters, lords and rulers in all lands
Is this the handiwork you give to God?
How will you ever straighten out this shape;
Touch it again with immortality?"

It's hard to find a man with a hoe these days. He's either got a machine gun or an army rifle in his hand. If by any chance it is a hoe, there's a bayonet on the end of it in too many lands.

Markham was nearly 50 years old and had been a school teacher 25 years when he wrote "The Man With Hoe" and found fame and fortune. That seems incredible in these swift days when a poet who has two or more rejection slips at the age of 21 decides it's the government's fault.

If a feller tries poetry and don't get a job right away writing jingles for a radio program he's apt to feel pretty discouraged. And to be around 50 years old before getting his picture in the papers and wowing the world seems pretty much of a hard-ship.

Maybe that's why there's so little significant poetry written. The poets are all in a hurry. And besides that they're all five or six years out of college.

GO AHEAD, BUST IT FRANK-!

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Remember how some of the women's club leaders protested when the state board of public welfare chose Frank C. Klode, who made his fortune in the furniture business and helped Heil get elected, for the important position of director of the state public welfare department?

Wyngaard

Since those original blasts there hasn't been a single criticism of the way Klode has handled what is one of the major agencies of the state government. He has even managed to wangle a word of praise now and then from some of those who were prepared to criticise.

The reason is that Klode has done better in his new job than almost anyone expected him to be able to do. He doesn't possess or claim any formal education in social problems, but he knows how to pick men who have such training. He has won the admiration of the executive office for the way in which he can make a budget dollar stretch, the respect of his big staff for his magnanimity combined with common sense. He is introducing new ideas and new methods, and some of his admirers are predicting that he will have accomplished more at the end of this year in the way of improving the far-flung social services of the state government than any of his predecessors.

NO DEBATE

Aldrid Revell, one of the most alert members of the capitol press corps, was asked by Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity at the University of Wisconsin, to appear at the fraternity's annual, famed Gridiron banquet this month to uphold the negative in a debate on the merits of Heil administration policies against a member of the administration.

His opponent, he was told, would be August Frey, one of Heil's most important capitol assistants and director of the state government research bureau.

"Sure" said Revell, who as the capitol reporter for the capital's Progressive organ has been a gadfly on the sensitive back of the administration during the last year, and whose lively tangles with Frey have been too numerous to mention.

Mr. Frey, however, declined. "Nope," he told the university boys. "I'm no talker."

RELATION

Although it wasn't mentioned at the time the appointment was announced in the capitol, Dr. Morris G. Caldwell, new head of the division of corrections is the son of former State Senator Robert Caldwell, prominent Republican.

The senior Caldwell was a power in the legislature during most of the last decade, and in 1936 was a Borah delegate to the national Republican convention. Today he is campaigning for a seat at the 1940 convention as a Dewey delegate.

CIVIL SERVICE

They aren't saying anything about it, but officials have run into some difficult snags in their attempt to put into operation the 1939 congressional and legislative mandate that all local pension and social security workers must be employed under the civil service law.

Although the law provided that civil service had to be established in all counties by January 1, 1940, it isn't likely to be made effective for many more weeks. And despite the alarm shown in official press releases from capitol officials some weeks ago that delay might imperil federal social security aids to the state, there has been no hint from Washington that there has been any thought of such penalties. Secret of the present delay is the patent, long-brewing, resentment of local officials about steadily increasing Madison and Washington interference in what they regard as their affairs.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HEADACHE FROM EYESTRAIN

Probably two out of three patients who consult ecculists complain of headache.

Headache from eyestrain may be felt in any part of the head or all thru the head, and so the location of the ache or pain is no indication either of the presence or absence of eyestrain or of the nature of the trouble if it is in the eyes. Neither is the time of occurrence of the headache any guide as to its dependence on eyestrain. Not only close work with the eyes, but in many instances the strain of regarding distant scenes may cause headache, especially when there is some defect of the eye muscles.

Patients with ocular muscle defects are more likely to get a headache from prolonged watching of moving objects such as parades, movies, or scenery passing the window of moving train or car.

In most instances patients who have eyestrain headache do not have any unusual redness or congestion of the lids or eyeballs. On the other hand, when such turgescence follows use of the eyes for close work the patient, tho having eyestrain, is unlikely to have headache.

Unquestionably many eyestrain headaches are ascribed to brain fag, biliousness, hunger, insufficient sleep or other presumptive cause because there is nothing to call attention to the eyes or the defect of vision.

On the other hand a great many credulous, imaginative persons conceive the fancy that perhaps they have eyestrain and readily find a merchant who confirms the idea and sells some glasses. In view of the fact that few of any civilized individuals have optically perfect eyes, or put in another way, practically every one has some defect of eyesight, it is difficult to decide just what degree of defect and strain should warrant correction with glasses. This is a talk about headache and not about care of the eyes. I shall say only that the question in any case is one that requiries not merely expert knowledge but the wisdom of long study and experience to answer.

A considerable degree of eyestrain may give no trouble as long as the individual is reasonably well, but headache or other symptoms may develop if the individual becomes tired out, gets insufficient rest or sleep, becames undernourished or is convalescing from some illness. I have a brochure entitled "Do Have Some Vite" which I believe will show many borderliners how they may avoid wearing glasses for moderate eyestrain. For copy send a 3c stamped envelope bearing your address.

Fifteen per cent of people now wearing glasses need them less than I need a new pipe—but don't let that stop you if you think a pipe is a nice present. I do too. What I mean to say is that, just as these impressionable folk were persuaded to wear glasses so they may be persuaded to try eye exercises, for instance, and presently find they are "cured" of the eyesight defect they believed they had.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ultraviolet

Does daily exposure of the skin to ultraviolet light from a therapeutic sun lamp prevent dental caries? Is there any harm in such treatment for a child or an adult, if the skin does not burn? (M. T.)

Answer—Exposure of naked skin to ultraviolet in direct sunshine or in the rays of a sunlamp causes natural generation of vitamin D in the body, and adequate vitamin D is one essential factor in development and preservation of sound teeth. If the exposure is not carried to the point of burning, only gradual tanning, there is no harm in it, rather general benefit, I believe.

right and ability of Michigan to control its elections against what he termed an "unwarranted intrusion" under proposed expansion of the Hatch anti-politics act.

Asserting the proposal, which would prohibit political activity by state employes paid to any extent with federal funds, was "an interference with the rights of Michigan," he said it should cover the big shots' if enacted

Brown declared it was no worse for clerks to be interested in keeping in power the party which gave them their jobs than it was for large corporations or wealthy individuals interested in keeping in power the party which supported their theories on tariffs or excise taxes or similar matters

He has offered an amendment under which officers and stockholders of corporations benefitting from federal aid or contracts would be prohibited from political activity.

Hatch said he was not opposed to this principal, but contended that the amendment would more extensively invade state rights and personal liberties than the pending bill.

REDS SEIZE ISLANDS

Helsinki —(AP)— The Finnish high command admitted today that the red army driving across the frozen Bay of Viipuri had obtained "a restricted foothold on the northwest shore of the bay" and captured some islands

The great battle for Viipuri continued with undiminished intensity in the midst of efforts from outside to find a basis for Finnish-Russian peace.

The advance of the Russians on the northwest shore of Viipuri bay produced a grave threat to Viipuri's coastal communications with the rest of Finland, menacing the Finnish defenders of the city from behind

To the east of Viipuri, the army announced, "all enemy attacks were repulsed," with the Russians suffering loss of men and "at least 18 tanks and several guns"

Successes in East

Extensive Finnish successes along the eastern front were reported at the same time.

The army said a Russian detachment, whose size was not given, was "completely annihilated" at Lavajarvi, that the Russians again lost "a large number of men" in furious but fruitless attacks throughout yesterday at Kollaanjoki, and that at Kuhmo, below the nation's narrow "wasp waist," the Finns captured some Russian positions, "much booty and 125 prisoners"

For the third successive day the high command told how the Finnish air force bombed and machine-gunned Russian forces seeking to beat their way across the ice of the Bay of Viipuri

Besides the troops, it said, there were columns of trucks, sledges and tanks

Six Russian planes were reported shot down yesterday.

There was no official comment today on the reported peace negotiations but the communique showed clearly that the overtures had brought no let-up in the fighting.

Six Men in Race For Nomination To Sheriff's Job

Five Candidates on Republican Ticket in Winnebago County

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh—Former Sheriff Arthur L. Nelson's announcement of his candidacy for sheriff of Winnebago county in the primary election next September brings the list of persons who have formally announced their aspirations for that position to six.

The six are Undersheriff Harry Krippner, former sheriff Nelson, Julius G. Holtz, Clarence Smith, Joseph Binder, and Joseph Cater. All but Cater, who will run on the Democratic ticket, are seeking the Republican nomination.

Nelson held the sheriff's job from 1929 until 1932. From 1932 until 1936 he served as county coroner. He began police work in 1914 being the first motorcycle officer for the city of Neenah. He joined the county police in 1920.

Holtz has been a member of the county police since 1929, serving as a motorcycle officer and deputy sheriff. He was active in the promotion of the county police radio system and is a director of the Wisconsin State Traffic Officers association.

Undersheriff Krippner was a deputy sheriff under former Sheriff Edward C. Abell and served as an operator when the police radio station WAKE was organized.

Smith, though one of the oldest men on the county police force, joined the sheriff's staff in 1932 after working for an Oshkosh candy company.

Though often rumored as a possible candidate for sheriff, Captain Irving Stilp of the motorcycle police regards the election as too far in advance to make any declarations now, although he jokingly states that he might as well run along that he "might as well run along

The other two candidates are not connected with the county police at all. Cater is a supervisor on the county board from an Oshkosh ward and Binder is employed at the Winnebago county garage.

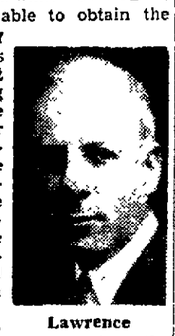
Smith Committee Proposals Cited As Too Moderate

Lawrence Says Other Amendments Will be Offered in House

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Although Representative Howard Smith of Virgina, Democrat, was able to obtain the concurrence of two Republicans for his report recommending changes in the Wagner labor act, the probabilities are that the Republican party in the house will not be content with the moderate alterations suggested by the Smith committee.



Lawrence

The Republicans feel that sentiment is gathering throughout the country against government by dictatorial commissions, and that the members of the new labor board should be held to a strict accountability for deviations from fair hearings and fair trial. Some Republicans are planning to offer amendments which will provide for removal of board members who abuse their offices by communicating with any litigants in advance of judgments and verdicts.

The record of the present labor board shows that not only did the members maintain an intimate relationship with labor union executives, consulting them on many important steps that would trap employers, but that the board employes wilfully permitted themselves to be used in coercing litigants and forcing settlements favorable to labor unions

Members of governmental commissions, it now is suggested, should be held just as much responsible for unethical conduct as are federal judges, and whenever they carry on any illicit correspondence with parties who come before them in a formal way, there should be some punishment provided for such misfeasance.

Will Ask Penalties

It is probable that penalties will be sought by the Republicans for improper conduct by members of the board in connection with congressional lobbying. Evidence has been uncovered that the present labor board maintained a systematic lobby, not only in Washington but throughout the country and that favors were solicited from union executives who were the beneficiaries of board decisions and rulings Federal judges have lately been under fire in various places and in one instance a federal judge has gone to prison because it was alleged that he borrowed money from a lawyer who had a case before him

Nothing of this kind has arisen in connection with the labor board employes but on the other hand the material objective of board members was selfishly to keep their appropriations intact by setting up a lobby to influence congress By asking various persons who were active in cases before the tribunal itself to go to bat in behalf of the board favors were solicited from labor executives which redounded to the benefit of the board and its staff. A federal law forbids already any such lobbying but to date nothing has been done to prosecute those who violated the law

It is being urged therefore that trafficking with either side by board members in labor disputes should be specifically prohibited so that the new labor board will realize it is expected to act entirely in a judicial and not in a political or crusading capacity

There are other amendments which the Smith committee has overlooked, doubtless in the desire to get agreement among its members but Republicans and several independent Democrats plan to offer amendments which will greatly restrict the tendency of the board to write into the law words that are in the statute.

Thus today the board selects virtually any penalty it wishes in order to punish an employer believed to have violated some precept of the board. The power to invent punishments has been expressly declared by the board to be within its province An amendment, therefore, becomes necessary, stating that no other penalties except those specifically provided in the labor relations act may be administered by the board.

Stretched Law

It is significant that the Smith committee's majority statement suggests an amendment to the present law whereby the words of a supreme court decision when it first upheld the Wagner act may become a respected rule of law The supreme court says the Wagner act does not compel agreement. But the present labor board has so stretched the present law by arbitrary interpretation as to make agreement virtually a matter of compulsion Those coercive features might never have crept into the decisions if the board members had not had a definite feeling that the preamble of the act itself encouraged compulsory unionization, so now, in order to assure the citizen of his rights to treat freely with his employes an amendment to the statute is being advocated that will remove the compulsory features. Labor unions in many instances do not like compulsory arbitration and employers do not like to be compelled to make agreements when they cannot afford financially to meet impossible demands

Labor retains its right to strike and is safeguarded in its right of collective bargaining under the Smith committee proposals but the Smith committee has not gone far enough to remove the abuses of collective bargaining This gives the Republican minority an opportunity to offer substantial amendments to the present law, some of which may have a good chance of passage because many independent Democrats feel the present labor board is one of the most dangerous influences toward collectivist government that has yet appeared.

LaFollette Declares Dispute Over Census 'Tempest in Teapot'

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Madison Progressive calls the current opposition to census-taking a "tempest in a teapot". To create the idea that any phase of the census is for "snooping purposes" is erroneous, he says.

Information on income is necessary to the government, he declares. For instance, census material is of great service to the finance committee of which he is a member, LaFollette points out.

If the present opposition is carried to its logical conclusion, there will be "no supporting economic or statistical data", the senator continues.

"Many people are not aware that the census is to their best interest. The census information is properly safeguarded and helps to build a composite picture of conditions in the country." Material about any given individual is not divulged, LaFollette stressed.

opportunity to obtain economic and social justice, and added:

"I am happy in the thought that American farmers have gone part way along that road to economic and social justice even though they have not reached the goal"

Secretary Wallace and Postmaster General Farley also spoke by radio to the farm meetings, which were described by administration spokesmen as "non-partisan."

The agriculture department chief, who advocates a third term for the president, said Mr. Roosevelt was the "greatest friend" the farmers ever had in the White House. Farley declared the farm program had received "nearly universal support" because its administration had been kept out of politics.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), who presided at close senate hearings on the agriculture appropriation and will direct action in the senate chamber, said senators on the subcommittee agreed upon a $212,000,000 fund for parity payments to farmers. These would be designed to assure farmers as much purchasing power as they had in 1909-14.

He said there was similar agreement on $85,000,000 for removal of surplus farm products.

Admits Over 40 Crimes Since Release from Badger Reformatory

Duluth, Minn.—(AP)—Stanley Zajac, 24, of Floodwood, Minn., has confessed more than forty crimes in four states since he was released from a Green Bay, Wis., reformatory last Dec. 9.

He was sentenced late Thursday to serve not less than five years and not more than ten years in a state penal institution. He was captured March 1 after an attempt to holdup a gasoline station here.

Victor H. Johnson, first assistant county attorney, listed 31 burglaries, 10 stolen automobiles, and arson in a confession signed by Zajac. The crimes were committed in Florida North Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The prisoner said his criminal career began so long ago that he "couldn't remember when the first was committed." He was first arrested for a burglary in 1936 at Gordon, Wis., when he broke into a general store and post office.

Security Board Tells Workers of Rights

Chicago—(AP)—The social security board announced today that until wage-earners became more familiar with the claims-paying machinery of the old age and survivors insurance system, it would notify workers approaching 65 of their probable right to benefits

The plan "in line with the board's policy to do all it can to prevent a worker losing, through ignorance of his rights, any part of his benefits," said H. L. McCarthy, regional director of the board for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Movieland Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hartford, Conn.—Dear Staff: Everywhere we go on this tour, I find adult fans asking questions about the screen's old-time stars. "What's become of Claire Windsor? . . . why can't we see Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill again? . . . what's happened to Gloria Swanson? . . . and Betty Compson? . . . and Charlie Farrell? . . . why isn't Janet Gaynor making pictures?

Fidler

There's more than idle curiosity behind those questions. Obviously, they're inspired by real affection, by a sincere interest in the fortunes of personalities that are still admired and loved. In them, too, it's easy to sense a feeling of resentment. Plainly, my questioners feel that Hollywood is robbing them by ruling such favorites "out."

I think there's considerable justice in their implied complaint. Hollywood's czars have fallen into the habit of "teasing" the public They pick a girl for stardom, sell her by every conceivable trick of hi-pressure ballyhoo, make her a popular idol. And then, just when fans have taken her into their hearts and accepted her as one of the family, they suddenly throw her into the discard and concentrate their sales campaign on some newer faces

Producers who claim that stars are forgotten after a brief absence from the screen, should talk things over with their customers. Real stars are never forgotten by the fans. It's Hollywood — the town built by peddling emotion—that is cold enough to blandly forget an old love in the thrill of a new one.

JIMMIE FIDLER

Dear Boss: Today's reddest face, down Metro way, belongs to Producer-director Mervyn Le Roy. Watching the daily "rushes" on "Waterloo Bridge," his frown grew blacker and blacker. At last he exploded: "Every blankety blank foot of this film is too dark! We've wasted a day's work because of underlighting!" One of his assistants finally got in a word. "Perhaps," he suggested gently, "it might look better if you'd take off your dark glasses!"

Wonder if the Board of Education has scooped us on stork news from the Crosby manse—they're planning a new grammar school just across the street . . . Ellen Drew's doctors have ordered Paramount not to work her more than four hours a day for the next month—it's nervous exhaustion . . . What's this about John Payne coming into a big estate on his 35th birthday? . . . Time marches on note: Beverly Hills has converted its famous bridle path, once the resort of Hollywood's greatest stars, into a hard-surfaced runway for cyclists . . . Credit Arthur Murray for this ayem's best chuckle. He asked a 20th Century assistant-producer, who had just returned from Arizona, what he thought of the Grand Canyon. "Impressive," was the answer. "But Zanuck would have done it differently!"

Lenten Thought For Today

Saturday, March 9. I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth. Read II Timothy 4:1-8

So St. Paul awaited the issue: having done his best the outcome was no longer in his hands. He awaited the issue of death; it is harder sometimes to await the issues of life. When we have done our best and the issue is beyond our vision, it is not easy—ever. The secret is courage, patience and faith; above all faith.

"Dost thou think," said Thomas Carlyle, "when men and nations perish as if without law and judgment . . . there is therefore no justice . . . I tell thee again there is nothing else but justice." Ah, but there is, Thomas: there are grace and mercy and healing. But we need just now—and sadly—Carlyle's confidence that "in all battles . . . if you await the issue, each fighter has prospered according to his right." We need more the prophet's vision of a Power in Whose hands are every issue. We need most of all the patient and gentle spirit of Jesus Christ shot through with a dauntless faith. And thus equipped we can await any issue.

Prayer: Lord of bright and troubled times alike, in Whose keeping are the events of life, grant unto us who see so little and know so little, neither to lose courage nor to surrender faith, but having done all to stand assured that underneath are the everlasting arms. Amen.

He has spent much time in the fields of psychology and educational tests and measurements.

The work for which Mr. Davis has been engaged is one which now is being stressed by both the NYA organization and vocational schools throughout the state, Sullivan explained. In order to make the new service available as quickly as possible the director has asked that youths of this vicinity register with the new guidance director, who is at the school from 8 to 4 every day except Saturday. Eligible for the program also are NYA workers, both those now working and those on the waiting list.

To Hold Conferences

A great share of the new director's time will be devoted to counseling work with young people, with private conferences devoted to finding out what line of work or what profession they are interested in. If no particular desire is present Mr. Davis may suggest a new field. Aptitude tests to show abilities are given.

A complete record is made of each person, including personal data, scholastic record, work record and general character references. This information is made available to employers seeking help. Mr. Davis has moved here with his family, and is now engaged in conducting an intensive business survey of Kaukauna.

J. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent, and Martin Salm, county field agent, explained the general workings of the program. A moving picture, "The River," showing efforts at flood control, was shown by Magnus. The group listened to radio speeches by President Roosevelt, Postmaster General James A. Farley and Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture. Leo H. Schmalz, general chairman, introduced the speakers and gave a brief talk.

Johnson Says Dewey, Frank Are Fumbling Farm Problem

Editor's Note: During Westbrook Pegler's vacation, the daily column by Hugh S. Johnson will be substituted in the Post-Crescent.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—Tom Dewey's farm speech was lifted largely from Glenn Frank's background for a Republican platform. Both were temperately, beautifully written.

In their critical aspects both were masterpieces of understatement. The net result of all that Mr. Wallace has done for agriculture is absolutely zero—which is considerably less than 32 degrees below freezing. So, Mr. Dewey and Mr. Frank made a fairly spectacular and unanswerable case on that point.

Johnson

All authorities agree that the problem is largely surplus production. Mr. Wallace started out to reduce the surplus. He has not decreased it. He has greatly increased it and his and other administration policies have vastly decreased the possibility of consuming it. In doing what he has done, Mr. Wallace has spent billions. I hate to criticize him, because he knows more about farming than anybody who attempts to discuss the subject. He is as sincere and intellectually honest a man as there is in this administration. I am so convinced of this that, if I were a Democratic president, on the theory of the best brains and experience for the job, Mr. Wallace would be my candidate for the job he now holds. But I wouldn't let him have his way and I would tactfully suggest that we find other places for many of his associates or advisers—possibly poking smoke through holes in doughnuts.

But both Glenn Frank and Tom Dewey hase disclosed that they don't know anything about the farm problem. After careful study of their offerings, I am inclined to believe that they don't even suspect anything about it. What they have given out could have been said by Herbert Hoover and much of it was said by him in 1932 and earlier—with disastrous results. They suggest to the farmer that he ought to return to the fostering care that the Republicans gave him in the seven years before 1933. They might have added "since the Civil war." If they knew the workings of farmers' minds, they would know that their stuff is like cheese offered to a mouse imprisoned in a cheese baited trap. That mouse didn't want any more cheese.

Burden of Both Songs is For High Tariff

The burden of both their songs is that all that is needed to help the farmer is to help industry, and that what he needs most is a high tariff. We have got to help industry—or go the way of Hitler and Mussolini. But tariffs do not and can not protect the farmer on his surplus crops. They are a subsidy paid to industry by an impoverished agriculture which simply cannot and will not stand it any more without a countervailing subsidy. That kind of Republican poison was sold to them ever since the Civil war and before the Civil war caused it—so far as the cotton raising south was concerned. If Mr. Dewey or the Republican party has no more to offer to agriculture than that, they are going to repeat 1932 and 1936 when they could so easily win in 1940.

Why the hell a man who is considered at all solely because he is a New York gang-busting district attorney, has to try to sell himself in Nebraska as a hired farmhand is beyond me. Both Confucius and regular farmers say: "Bohee!"

What farmers need is free and unrestricted production and sale of their products and an outright subsidy to bring their prices for what we consume in this country up to absolute "parity." I have no brief in logic for the "parity" formula although I invented it in 1921 for sheer lack of anything better. But if the whole country accepts the justice and fairness of it—as seems to be the case, why should there be so much obfuscating conversation and so little direct and forthright promise of action?

Driver Is Cleared Of Blame in Fatal Traffic Accident

Coroner's Jury Finds Death of John Hart, 82, 'Unavoidable'

Kaukauna — John Hart, 82, 312 Desnoyer street, fatally injured Sunday when struck by an auto driven by Elmer Joachim, 36, route 2, De Pere, came to his death by an "unavoidable accident." This was the verdict yesterday afternoon of a coroner's jury composed of Charles Phillips, William Doering, William Richardson, J. B. Delbridge, Bryan Reardon and W. H. Cooper.

Hart, struck as he was crossing Lawe street at the Wisconsin avenue intersection, died from shock, internal injuries and multiple fractures, Dr. G. J. Flanagan, who attended the victim, testified. It was brought out that the victim, conscious for several hours after the accident, spoke of it to no one.

Robert Main, patrolman on duty at the corner toward which Hart was coming, said it was his opinion Hart could have avoided the approaching car if "he had looked before he started across the street." Dewey Prisk, Hotel Kaukauna, said that from his chair in the hotel lobby it appeared that Hart walked across looking neither left no right. Main said he shouted to Hart to "wait a minute," and John Haid, assistant chief of police, later testified that the victim was "quite hard of hearing."

Police Testify

Main and Harold Engerson, traffic officer, testified the windshield of Joachim's car was dirty and the brakes poor. In a test of the brakes it took the car 60 feet to stop at 16 miles per hour.

Engerson stated Joachim told him after the accident he had been going "between 15 and 20 miles an hour." Joachim, present at the inquest, did not testify.

Main and Engerson reported the driver had not been drinking.

MENASHA — Neenah and Kaukauna High school cagers will clash at 9:30 tonight for the championship of the Menasha regional tournament and the right to enter the state high school cage tourney.

Neenah won its way into the finals by downing New London 27 to 20 in a game that featured a defensive battle through the first half. Kaukauna had trouble with DePere all of the way and had to rally in the last four minutes of the game to defeat the Redbirds 29 to 26 to enter the finals.

Weyauwega managed a victory over Plainfield 24 to 19 in the consolation round although the Wega team showed the effects of its battle with New London and was far from impressive. Wega will clash with Menasha at 7:30 tonight for the consolation title while DePere and New London will meet for third place honors at 8:30.

Defenses Feature

Two tight defenses clashed in the Neenah-New London game. The Bulldogs held Neenah without a field goal until 5 minutes of the second quarter were gone. Each team made two field goals during the first half but New London held an edge because of accuracy from the free throw line.

The Rockets solved the New London defense in the second half and took the lead by the end of the third quarter. The two teams matched points during the fourth quarter until there were three minutes left and the Rockets pulled away.

Captain Harland Hesselman starred for the Rockets with 10 points. He also gathered in a majority of the rebounds and was responsible for two baskets on passes to Herzfeldt.

Hesselman opened the scoring by sinking two free throws but Poppy came back with one and Pues made two gift shots a moment later. A minute before the end of the quarter Poppy sank a long set shot to give the Bulldogs a 5 to 2 lead.

Defense predominated during the second quarter too with each team scoring four points. Neenah got theirs first. Haufe missed two free throws but Hesselman batted the ball back through the hoop for the first Neenah basket after 13 minutes of play. Haufe snared the ball a moment later in a scamble under the Neenah basket and dropped it through the net to give the Rockets a 6 to 5 lead.

Meiklejohn Hurt

Meiklejohn was hurt when he crashed into the wall after stopping a Neenah charge with a brilliant piece of guarding. He played through most of the game but was not as effective. He did sink a set shot shortly after he was hurt that put New London back in front. Sullivan and Hammerberg counted gift shots to restore the Bulldog margin and the half ended 9 to 6.

Neenah whittled away at the margin in the third quarter. Herzfeldt took a pass from Hesselman to score but Meiklejohn sank a free throw which was matched by B. Ketteringe's gift shot. Pues missed a free throw but Hammerberg was in position to shove the rebound through. Miller made two free throws and Hoyman tied the score at 12-all on a gift shot.

Ross put New London ahead temporarily with a one-handed push attempt but Hesselman seized a free ball and scored to tie the count at 14-all. Herzfeldt took a pass from Hesselman for another basket and the Rockets had a lead they held for the rest of the game. Poppy made a free throw but Miller sank a short shot to put Neenah ahead 18 to 15 at the end of the third period.

Stretches Advantage

Neenah stretched its advantage at the start of the fourth quarter to 21 to 15. Miller scored a basket on a fast break and Hoyman added a free throw. Through the last part of the third quarter and early fourth quarter New London rained shots at the basket that failed to sink. Pues scored a free throw and Ross finally counted on a rebound for the Bulldogs to leave the score 21 to 18 with over five minutes left.

Neenah too missed some set-up amid wild scrambles shots but finally pulled away with three successive baskets. Hesselman scored the first and Herzfeldt was left alone under the Neenah basket. He took a long pass and sank the shot but missed the gift shot when fouled by Poppy. Hesselman swished one from the corner to put Neenah in front 27 to 18.

The Rockets stalled during the last four minutes except for occasional breaks toward the hoop that scored the last three baskets. Ross closed the scoring with a looper

Jacobs Has Counter Claim For Jim Braddock, Gould

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— Exclusive! Mike Jacobs will counter Joe Gould's $104,000 suit with a legal action of his own. . . If and when it comes to court Mike will allege he was forced to okey the agreement giving Gould and Jim Braddock 20 per cent of his profits from Joe Louis because if he didn't Braddock wouldn't have given Max Schmeling the go-by and laid his title against the bomber. . . . Horace Stoneham says the Giants are interested in Pitchers M'Gee and Cooper of the Cards—not Joe Medwick — and anyway any deal for Harry Danning is out.

One-Minute Interview

Bob Feller wants it known that whoever said the American league umpires didn't give him any breaks, was slightly off key. He says:

"I get as many pitches called strikes as any of the pitchers. . . I don't figure I got any bad breaks from the umps."

Bob ought to know, we say.

Ripon Places Two Cagers on Midwest All-Conference 5

Frederickson, Lawrence Forward, Is Accorded Honorable Mention

CHAMPIONSHIP Ripon placed two men on the first and one one the second team as the result of voting by the nine coaches for Midwest conference basketball honors it was announced today. Milan Bloecher, captain and senior of the Redmen, was placed at one forward, while tall sophomore, Jim Rember, was elected to a guard position on the first team. Sveto Krcmar, junior, who was also an all-conference football man, was chosen a guard on the second team.

The top honors go to Jim Nash of Grinnell who was champion scorer of the conference and was almost a unanimous choice at forward. The senior thus receives the double recognition of being named captain of the team. Slim Mannen of Monmouth, a member of the all-conference second team during his sophomore and junior years, was chosen center and Carleton's Harvey Larson was chosen guard to complete the first five.

Quint Nelson, of Carleton, worked up from two years on the honorable mention list to captain the second team at center. Beloit placed Will Harmon, a junior, at a forward and Eddie May, sophomore, at guard. Sam Efnor, a senior of Knox, is teamed with Harmon. The voting for guard positions was especially close, sixteen men receiving votes:

Don Frederickson, Lawrence forward, was one of four players to receive honorable mention. The others were Plunkett, Monmouth; Schneider, Cornell, and Scott, Coe.

BY GORDON McINTYRE

IN a game which saw the world's worst basketball for the first half, but which ended in a breath-taking battle for the deciding point—and then featured a fight in the dressing room—Appleton High school cagers defeated Manitowoc here last night, 27 to 26. It was the final game of the Valley conference schedule.

The win gave Appleton fifth place in the conference standings with seven wins against seven defeats. Oshkosh and Central tied for first place as a result of Oshkosh's surprise defeat at the hands of Fond du Lac, 24 to 22. Fondy and Green Bay West tied for third and fourth, West beating East, 24 to 22. Central won its final game from North, 35 to 27.

Coach Myrlon Seims started five senior members of the Terror team, Fraser and Lathrop forwards, Rollins center and Blacher and Powers guards. They couldn't do a thing and neither could Manitowoc with the result that the first quarter score was 5 to 1 for Manitowoc and the half score 7 to 3. The exhibition was a galaxy of missed baskets of poor passes and of clumsy work afoot.

Part of the trouble may have been some of most inconsistent refereeing this season on the part of Lars Thune and Al Reed, both of Green Bay. They blew their whistles so feebly that you often didn't know whether it was the official or a sophomore girl squealing with enthusiasm. They'd blow one play and the next time they'd let the same maneuver go uncalled. They reacted slowly to situations and often the youngsters were several yards down the floor only to be called back for traveling or an out of bounds.

The first eight minutes of play saw Manitowoc grab a 5 to 1 lead on a field goal and three free throws. Appleton missed five gift shots during the period. The invaders held a 6 to 1 lead before Burton got the Terrors' first basket. Coach Seims had sent Burton, Kliefoth and Blacher into the contest shortly after the second period opened. The basket was the sum total of the Terrors' points for the period and the half closed with the score 7 to 3 for Manitowoc.

Appleton had a little more drive as the third quarter got underway. Manitowoc scored the opening basket but Cooper drove in to score. Blacher got a basket on which it appeared Wolfgram of Manitowoc deflected the ball just enough to make it sure, and when Lathrop took a pass from Burton on a fast break and canned the ball the score was 9-all.

Score Tied At 16-All

Manitowoc got a long shot but Cooper followed up a shot and the score was 11-all. Manitowoc took the lead on a free throw but Burton got it back with a basket on a play which showed Powers making the final pass. Manitowoc worked the best play of the evening as Krohn, guard, scored but Blacher gave Appleton a basket and the third quarter ended 16-all. Appleton had scored 13 points to 9 for Manitowoc.

When the final quarter got under way, Cooper tipped a pass to Lathrop who scored giving Appleton an 18 to 16 lead. Burton dribbled in from the corner to score and three free throws and Cooper's goal from the free throw circle gave Appleton a 25 to 18 lead and the game appeared to be won.

Manthey, mite Manitowoc forward and guard, grabbed the ball and tossed in a long shot to cut the lead. Then he got it again and after maneuvering a bit, tossed a push shot through the hoop. Appleton asked for time out to let Manthey cool off but he came back with another one handed push as the final 2½ minutes started. The score then was 25 to 24.

When Cooper pushed a followup through the net it appeared the Terrors positively were in. But Tadych maneuvered for a basket and the lead was 27 to 26 for Appleton. Manthey committed a foul but Appleton took the ball out of bounds to keep control. Powers stood with the ball in his hands for the final seven seconds with Manthey fouling him as the horn sounded. He missed the throw.

As the teams left the floor for their respective dressing rooms, a Manitowoc manager is alleged to have dropped a remark which resulted in a couple Appleton players following him into the Manitowoc dressing room. A bit of fisticuffs was staged before teachers and coaches quieted the lads and sent the Appleton team upstairs to its locker room.

The box score:

Clarke Hinkle Gets Offer to Coach at Stanford University

Green Bay, —(AP)— Clarke Hinkle, veteran fullback of the Green Bay Packers, National Professional Football champions, is considering an offer to become backfield coach at Stanford University.

"I'm very much interested in the offer made by Clark Shaughnessy (new head coach at Stanford)," Hinkle said last night. "I feel it would be a real break for me."

Should Hinkle accept the position, his departure would mean a serious loss to the Packers. The former Bucknell star has been a mainstay of the Green Bay eleven since 1932. In eight seasons he has scored a total of 274 points.

MILTON Leininger cut loose in the Merchants league last night and became the first Appleton bowler to roll over 700 in a league match this season. Leininger collected games of 200, 265 and 247 for a big 712 series and established a new high season triple at Arcade alleys. His efforts included high game of the evening.

Team honors went to Weyenberg Dairy with a 1,133 game and Checker Cab with a 3,066 total.

Coca-Cola keglers were the only ones who turned a 3-game trick, victims being Al Brandt taverns. Dr. McBain led the way with a 200 game and 572 series. Tops for the losers was T. Jansen with a 190 game and 546 series.

Checker Cabs won two games from Leath Furnitures as K. Priebe toppled a 202 game and 570 series. Leininger mainstayed the losers.

Checker Lunch protected its league lead with a 2-game win over Steenis Transfer. Dr. Ruekert paced the victors with a 172 single and 493 total. L. Murphy topped the losers with a 198 game and 500 series.

Win Two Games

Schuessler Weatherstrips downed Clover Farm Stores in two games as B. Braeger collected a 214 game and D. Huhn tripled 572. High for the losers was C. Brockman with a 203 game and 533 series.

Hooks and Tony took two games from Wisconsin Auto Wrecking company as E. Horn smashed a 254 game and 603 series, N. Brauer adding a 202. D. Hamilton paced the losers with a 222 game and 582 series, M. Malofsky adding 217.

Hughes and Bendt took two games from Telephone Company as Loppnow hit 197 and 578. Kienitz toppled 219 and 506 for the losers.

Two games went to Clark's Cleaners in a match with Johnson Hatters. Dick Wenzlaff led the winners with a 566 series and 207 game, B. Bozak steaming a 218. Dr. C. L. Kolb highed for the losers with a 573 series, including a 211 game, and R. Hauert added a 213.

Weyenberg Dairy picked up two games from Miller High Life as W. Grimmer poked a 651 series with games of 247 and 237, J. Foster and W. Horn each slapping games of 217. A. Roehl was high for the losers with a 516 series, M. Gabriel counting a 190 single.

MENASHA TOURNAMENT NOTES

WHEN Kaukauna and Neenah meet at 9:30 tonight for the championship of the Menasha regional tournament, it will be another "rubber" game. Each team won on its home floor during the Northeastern Wisconsin conference season. Kaukauna was the first team to defeat Neenah this year, turning the trick by a 33 to 27 margin at Kaukauna. The Rockets won 18 to 15 on their home floor.

Neenah made it two-out-of-three over New London with its victory in the semi-finals Friday night. The two quintets still share the conference title though with Shawano.

Among the spectators for the last two nights has been Harold "Bud" Foster, coach of the University of Wisconsin basketball team. He'll be back for the championships tonight. There are plenty of star players for him to watch, including Hesselman of Neenah, Hertz and Le Roy Grancorbitz of Weyauwega.

Alger and Giordana of Kaukauna, Coller and Hermans of DePere, and several of the New London players. Some of those stars are still underclassmen at their schools.

The spirit of good sportsmanship has been noted mostly by its absence, not among the players but among the spectators. Partisan fans have done their best to upset stars of several teams by noise and concerted yelling. Hesselman, Giordana, and Meiklejohn seem to have been singled out... yet the players are sportsmen. Giordana lost his temper when a fuorth foul was called on him Friday night but he apologized to the referee later.

Weyauwega has turned in the cleanest record in the tournament with only 11 fouls in two games. Opponents have scored only eight points in two games from the free throw line against Wega but New London made all five of their attempts count.

Two coaches who directed teams in the tournament were watching from the sidelines last night. They were Paul Little of Kaukauna and N. A. Calder, Menasha. Each has turned basketball over to another coach and are directing the physical education activities and coaching football at their respective schools. G. E. Braisher, DePere, dean of the coaches of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, is back at the tournament with his notebook in which he makes copious notes. He has been at the DePere school something like 17 years.

Douglas Anderson, Menasha center, received a "shiner" in the Kaukauna game when his teammate, Roy Wippich, bumped Anderson with his knee in a wild scramble on the floor. The eye puffed up in a hurry and Anderson said he saw double for most of the rest of the game. In that same game Giordana attempted to pick up a loose ball and kicked it. The ball sailed over half the legth of the floor, reminiscent of the way Giordana booted those extra points during the football season.

Plainfield was somewhat handicapped because the team is used to playing on a much smaller floor. One of the Plainfield players is reported to have dribbled halfway down the court and then said to the official, "Gosh, how much farther do I have to go?"

KAWS RALLY TWICE

Kaukauna had to come from behind twice in order to defeat a fighting DePere team 29 to 20. DePere showed a reversal of form from the wild exhibition Wednesday night in which they beat Kimberly 20 to 17 and made trouble for the Kaws all of the way.

Alger and Block scored 11 points each for the Kaws and got them when they were needed most. Hermans kept DePere in the game with 11 points while Coller added four baskets.

DePere led 8 to 7 at the end of the first quarter. The Redbirds opened the game with two free throws but Block scored two baskets and Alger made a free throw to give Kaukauna a 5 to 2 edge. Coller and Hermans made baskets and DePere led. Swedberg put Kaukauna in front again with a set shot but Hermans batted in a rebound when Coller missed a free throw to give DePere its 8 to 7 margin at the end of the quarter.

Biselx took a pass from Giordana when the two Kaws broke fast and scored. The lead was short-lived and DePere went into a 12 to 9 lead on baskets by Hermans and Coller. The Kaws then started their first concerted drive which gave them a 16 to 12 lead at half-time. Block made three points on two successive fouls by Roffers Alger added two baskets, one on a pass from Swedberg under the hoop and the other on a rebound.

Giordana Aroused

Hermans scored a basket. Giordana was charged with his fourth personal and drew a technical foul as well when he threw the ball away. Vissers sank the technical but Hermans missed on the personal foul attempt. Coller then came through with two baskets and Vissers scored one to give DePere a 22 to 20 lead. Alger sank a long set shot to leave the Kaws trailing 23 to 22 at the end of the third period

Marcouiller and Alger matched baskets at the start of the fourth quarter and Collins made a free throw to give DePere a 26 to 24 advantage. The Kaws then opened their winning drive. Block made a free throw with four minutes left and a minute later Alger put Kaukauna a point ahead with a shot from deep in the corner. Swedberg added a free throw and Block made a gift shot to give the Kaws a 29 to 26 lead with two minutes left. DePere missed three gift shots in the last two minutes.

WEYAUWEGA WINNER

Weyauwega eliminated Plainfield from the tournament 24 to 19 but failed to look impressive in doing so. The team appeared listless and LeRoy Grancorbitz was hampered by an ankle injury he received in the New London game Thursday night. Gill Hertz took over scoring duties and led the team with 12 points.

Wega took a 5-point lead in the first quarter and held it up to half time. The fighting Plainfield team uncorked a rally of its own and tied the score at 19-all at the end of the third period. Wega took control during the fourth quarter and held Plainfield without a point while adding five to their own score to win the game.

Wega led 11 to 6 at the end of the first quarter Hertz made two baskets and two free throws. LeRoy Grancorbitz added a basket and a free throw and Prentice sank a field goal for Wega.

Both teams scored five points in the second quarter and Weyauwega led 16 to 11 at the half. Hertz collected three free throws and Prentice scored on a long set shot for Wega. In the third quarter Harold Grancorbitz made a basket and a free throw to give a 19 to 13 lead but Plainfield uncorked its rally. Warner made two baskets, Spees sank one, and Lamb took a pass from Spees and got his shot away at top speed to tie the score

In the final quarter Hertz scored a field goal and gift shot and H. Grancorbitz made a field goal. Each team scored eight field goals but Wega won by sinking eight of 11 gift attempts. Plainfield made three of eight.

The DOG OWNER and HIS DOG

BY ALLAN KERR

IN October, 1936, the Russian wolfhound officially became the borzoi. From the mumblings and mutterings that one hears on the street, it might be gathered that public opinion would perhaps force the change in name now, if it had not been revised previously. Or have we become more level-headed and tolerant since the last war?

Many will recall that about the time we were being sold on the idea of liberty cabbage to replace sauerkraut, the little German dachshund was being stoned in the street. He was quickly christened badger dog by legislation of the American Kennel club; which may or may not have saved his hide. Perhaps the publicity did him good. At any rate he has climbed right up into sixth place in registrations.

But this is about the borzoi, which probably could stand a little of most any kind of publicity. For the breed has not done as well as its many good qualities would lead us to believe it should. Why? Is the beautiful big creature too aristocratic for us one-thirders who have to wear last year's overcoat?

After all, the borzoi is the pet of royalty, economic and otherwise. Early in the 1900's Queen Alexandra favored the breed, and many winners graced her kennels Unquestionably they have been the dog of beautiful palaces and extensive estates Would it help to take some of them out of the marble halls and give them a little training and experience up in the wolf country?

Member of Hound Group

It must be remembered that the borzoi is definitely a member of the hound group. His forebears were coursing dogs for hundreds of years. He is built for speed, and like the greyhound, when given the opportunity to apply his trade he hunts by sight Perhaps if given more chance to demonstrate his inherited ability such mistaken ideas as the following might be corrected.

Said to have been overheard at a dog show was this remark: "Them Rooshins hunts is dumb They ain't got no room for brains in them little heads." He was referring to the flat, narrow skulls on the dogs. If this fellow had moved over to where the obedience tests were going on he might have seen some of these very borzoi entries giving some of the "smart" dogs a run for their money. For the "Rooshins" do right well in these events

Few will pass by a wolfhound without taking a second look. In the good one you will see the well-knit, beautifully proportioned animal; one having poise, graceful movement and a look of elegance He will be a narrow race job of about 100 pounds, with a height around 30 inches There will be a deep chest and extremely small girth at the loin.

The long tail will be set on and carried low. Legs will be long and muscular. The long, silky, wavy coat may be white with lemon, tan, brindle, grey or black markings, and sometimes solid colors. But black is definitely out (Easy to remember—blackout)

Owners of the borzoi will likely agree with the writer who said something about the dog having the speed and endurance surpassing that of his ancestors, the heart and courage of a lion yet withal as gentle as a kitten in the home.

but the Merchants tied up the score at 12-all at half time. B. Remmel paced the Hucks with six field goals He scored five in the second period Johnnie Block followed with five field goals Fritz Block scored six points for the losers.

Van Handels Win

The final game of the first round had Van Handel Shoes defeating Denmark Old Lagers, 49 to 35. The initial period closed 18 to 12 in favor of the Shoes and followed with 28 to 17 in the second period and 39 to 25 in the third period. The Old Lagers jumped into the lead in the first two minutes with some "hot" shots which made it appear the Van Handels were in for a tough evening. They cooled off however, after the locals started to find the range. Bernie Bongers collared six field goals and three free shots for 15 points to pace the Shoes on offense while Mike Hammen and Snoos Van Dyke held down the opponents' scoring. Lodl topped the losers with five buckets and four gift shots for 14 points. Buehler showed up defensively bes des contributing four field goals.

In the first game of the quarter finals, Jansky Furnitures of Two Rivers defeated Valvolene Oils of Neenah in a fast battle which had both squads going at top speed Valvolenes led at the end of the first period, 13 to 12, trailed at half time, 22 to 20, and also at the end of the third period, 37 to 31. Reinhart, Busch and Elliot again collaborated to score 43 of the 53 points Busch scored four field goals and eight free shots while Elliot scored six field goals and four free shots Reinhart scored four field goals and three free shots Both teams were "hot" on free shots with the winners converting on 19 of 25 chances and the losers on 11 out of 17 chances. Thirty-three fouls were dished out in the hectic contest D Schmidt scored 20 points to pace the Oils. He had seven goals and six free throws.

Quarter Finals Tonight

With Two Rivers one of the winners of the right to enter the quarter finals, six teams still must play to see which will enter Sunday's games.

The opening game tonight will have the Kaukauna Merchants meeting the Columbia Squires of Green Bay at 7 30 The Merchants are doped to win but may get a setback as the Squires have a fast outfit.

At 8 30, Ciske Brothers Taverns meet Abraham and Brown in what should be a nip and tuck affair With Rube Prunuske as hot as he was Thursday evening when he scored 16 points, the Taverns are expected to ride to victory.

The semi-finals will start at 2 30 Sunday afternoon with the consolation game at 7.30 Sunday evening and the championship game at 8 30

Seymour Winner Over Reedsville

Stops Losers' Rally in Fourth Quarter and Cops 23-21 Nod

Kewaunee—Seymour High school basketball team went into the consolation finals of the Kewaunee regional tournament here tonight when it defeated Reedsville, 23 to 21, in Friday night's game A fourth quarter rally by Reedsville almost nipped Seymour Seymour's opponent tonight will be Chilton.

But while Seymour was pleased at the win and chance for consolation honors, it was peeved at lady luck who made the Indians a victim of Two Rivers Thursday. Yesterday she took the Two Rivers center out of the tournament with an injured toe and made his team so vulnerable it lost to Sturgeon Bay

Last night Seymour took a 6 to 4 lead at the quarter and held a 14 to 8 decision at the half. In the third quarter it added seven points to four for Reedsville and led 21 to 12. In the final period Reedsville staged a spurt and counted nine points while Seymour was getting only two.

Wolves Qualify 11 At Big Ten Meet

Indiana Puts Six in Finals; Wisconsin Trails With Three

Chicago—(AP)— Michigan's versatile and talented track squad is away and running fast toward the school's seventh consecutive Big Ten indoor title and the twelfth in the history of the conference.

The Wolverines moved into a pace-setting position in last night's preliminaries although Indiana's Roy Cochran stole the show with a record-breaking 484 performance in the 440-yard semi-final trials.

Cochran's time, a tenth of a second higher than he registered in a dual meet earlier this season, nevertheless broke the four-year-old mark of 488 set by Ray Ellinwood of Chicago.

In this event and three others—the 60-yard dash, half mile and 70-yard hurdles — Michigan qualified a total of 11 men, four in the half mile, three each in the 60-yard dash and 70-yard hurdles and one in the 440.

Indiana, rated Michigan's strongest rival for the title, qualified six men, Illinois five; Wisconsin, Northwestern and Iowa, three each, and Chicago, Purdue, Minnesota and Ohio State, two each.

Wisconsin's qualifiers were Buxton and Bauer in the 880 yard run and Ed Smith in the 70 yard high hurdles. Buxton had the best time among qualifiers, covering the distance in 1 minute, 55 3 seconds Smith and Olsen, Illinois, both ran the hurdles in 8 8 seconds for the best time.

MARQUETTE FAVORED

East Lansing, Mich.—(AP)— Marquette University's well on the way to ending Notre Dame's Monopoly Collegiate conference indoor championship

The Hilltoppers, who won the outdoor title last year but who have never done very well inside in the past, took over the favorite's role in the fourteenth renewel of the event as a result of preliminaries in Jenison field house last night.

Twelve places in six events went to Marquette as compared with eight for Notre Dame, the defending champion and winner of 10 of the 13 previous meets, and six for the University of Pittsburgh.

Training Camp Notes

By the Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. — The Cardinals and the world champion Yankees, the two training tenants of this town, open a six-game spring series today. Both clubs will use rookies plentifully.

Pasadena, Calif. — Jimmy Dykes is optimistic about the hitting of his Chicago White Sox this year. Taft Wright, Moose Solters, Mike Kreevich and Luke Appling have been swatting hard in training sessions.

Lakeland, Fla. — Frigid weather is delaying the appearance of the veteran Schoolboy Rowe in a game for the Detroit Tigers. He was to have pitched yesterday, but the temperature was too snappy.

Clearwater, Fla. — The Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn Dodgers transferred their grapefruit league series here today after the Daffiness boys had taken a 9-6 ten-inning decision yesterday at Tampa under some of the most dismal playing conditions of the spring.

Avalon, Calif.—Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs is tickled over the work of pitcher Bill Lee, who allowed the regulars only one hit in three innings yesterday in a camp game. Hartnett scheduled another contest today, with Charley Root and Larry French hurling for the yannigans against Jake Mooty and Dick Bass for the regulars.

Orlando, Fla. — Impressed with the showing of young Sidney Hudson in an intra-squad game, Manager Bucky Harris decided today to start the rookie on the mound for the Washington Senators tomorrow in their first exhibition game against the New York Giants.

Fort Myers, Fla. — Delayed by a knee operation performed a month ago, infielder Oscar Grimes has arrived at the Cleveland Indians training camp and will look on for a week or so before beginning strenuous exercise.

San Antonio, Tex. — The St Louis Browns, with nine days of work behind them, planned to get down to competition today in a six-inning, intra-squad game.

Bradenton, Fla. — Eddie Miller, the Boston Bees' brilliant young shortstop, has been posted as the club's only holdout. He had until midnight to report, but President Bob Quinn says he has heard nothing from him since he returned his unsigned contract Feb. 1.

Winter Haven, Fla. — The boys around here are suspicious of talk that the New York Giants' holdout first baseman, Zeke Bonura, might be traded to the Brooklyn Dodgers. Some think the report is just a Larry MacPhail scheme to bring his own holdout, Dolph Camilli, into line. Supporting this belief was the information that Camilli left his California home yesterday, presumably for Florida.

San Diego, Calif. — Connie Mack is hopeful nothing serious is wrong with Bob Johnson, the Philadelphia Athletics' slugging outfielder. Johnson pulled a muscle sliding into home plate Thursday and yesterday was ordered to the sidelines for ten days. His absence didn't break the A's unbroken string of exhibition victories, though. Eddie Collins singled home a run in the twelfth inning to beat Los Angeles, 10-9.

San Bernardino, Calif. — Floyd Yount, youngest and tallest of the Pittsburgh Pirates' eight outfield candidates, was the star of the club's practice game yesterday. He got three safeties, one of them a triple, that started the yannigans to a 6-5 victory over the regulars. Yount, 6 feet 1 inch tall and 23 years old, batted .349 for Portsmouth last summer.

Miami Beach, Fla. — Joe Marty may have to reduce a bit before getting into top shape, but there's nothing wrong with his batting eye. In his first appearance at the plate for the Phillies, he belted a homer over the left field fence. He arrived yesterday with first baseman Gus Suhr, who presented his signed contract and left Roy Hughes alone holding out.

Jenkins Seeking Shot at Lou Ambers

Texas Lightweight Leaps To Fore With K. O. Over Tippy Larkin

BY BILL BONI

New York—(AP)— Down Texas way, where Lew Jenkins hails from, they used to clean up whole settlements with a pair of six-shooters.

But they couldn't have done the job more convincingly than did the lightweight from Sweetwater last night at the Garden with a pair of T N T.-laden gloves.

Matched with Tippy Larkin, another long, lean kid from over the river in Jersey, Jenkins started cautiously enough.

Then, abruptly he fired with both hands. In two minutes and 41 seconds of the first round, Larkin was left flailing around in his own corner like a fish out of water.

That wham-wham-wham finish, his ninth straight local victory and sixth K. O., should have boosted Jenkins into a lightweight title bout with champion Lou Ambers. Promoter Mike Jacobs thought it should, and set aside May 10 for the bout Manager Hymie Caplin thought it should, and so informed one and all.

But Al Weill, Ambers' pilot, had other things on his mind, notably the National Boxing association's recent edict that Ambers, by March 22 must sign for a title defense against Davey Day of Chicago or the lightweight throne will be declared vacant.

"Let Jenkins fight Day, and then we'll talk" said Weill.

Caplin screamed in outraged protest

"So he's a matchmaker now, that Weill" He's telling us who we should fight. Davey Day he's giving us! Tell him we fight better by right then by day."

Caplin, the man of ten thousand words, as usual was having the last one.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

DOROTHY LAMOUR as Mima. Her luxuriant, well groomed hair is a definite "glamour" asset!

If your hair is very dry, and lacking in lustre, the chances are it needs a little pampering, and nothing can pep up its natural beauty more quickly than a reconditioning oil treatment at home. This is how it is done.

Comb out your hair and shake out any loose dust. In fact a good brushing will help too. Rinse it with very warm water and then apply the reconditioning oil (which has been heated) by parting your hair in strands and anointing the scalp before the full length of the hair. Use absorbent cotton. To be certain that each hair is treated, take what oil is left in the palms of your hands and rub the ends between them.

How to Steam

Wring out a turkish towel from hot water and wrap it around your head. Steaming like this spreads the oil and softens the hair. You should apply hot towels for five minutes at least, pressing the steam into your hair. After a hot water rinsing you shampoo with a bland liquid soap and rinse very well.

Dry in the sun, if you can, massaging your scalp all the while, then, when it is thoroughly dry, brush with a clean brush for ten or fifteen minutes before you set it yourself, or go to your beauty parlor.

It shouldn't take you more than three-quarters of an hour (unless your hair is very thick) and you cannot help but be delighted with the brilliant satiny sheen and the new highlights. Have it set with water only—no lotion is needed.

Your hair should have from two to four such treatments before you get a new permanent wave.

After Your Permanent Wave

When your permanent is one week old you may give your hair another oil reconditioning treatment. It will not harm your curl and it will make your hair more silky. In fact the after-wave treatment is vitally important to the life of your wave and to its beauty.

You will also need a mild lubricating lotion for the scalp (if hair tends to be dry) applied every other day and a softening lotion or cream for the ends. Both of these must be used sparingly for you do not want to get a greasy effect.

Daily brushing is in order and any reliable hairdresser will inform you that brushing helps your permanent instead of harming it. For brushing is to the hair, what massaging is to the skin. It cleanses it and stimulates its growth. It also distributes the scalp's natural oils to the entire length of the hair.

Do not shampoo your hair until your wave is two weeks old at least; after that once every ten days is sufficient.

If you have any hair problem I wish you would write me, for I have prepared several instructive leaflets which may be had free upon request. But be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope when you write me.

ENTERTAINING GUEST

Several days ago, after Miss Kent, my assistant, had spent a long time on an idea for me, only to have it returned to her with not a word of it undestroyed, said sadly, "Well! anyway I had very good intentions." From this came the thought of the unending number of good intentions that only seemingly are lost. The good intentions of the following want-to-be hostess will not be lost either if she gives a certain invitation the right way.

She writes me: "I've just heard that a friend whom I especially like is coming to this city on business and to see the sights. This friend has never stayed with us; in fact, my husband has never met her. I don't know whether it would be suitable for me to invite her to stay at my place because we have no spare room. She would be very welcome, and if you think it will be all right for me to write and invite her, do you think that I should explain that I can give her only a made-up bed on a couch in a sitting-room, in case she might not like to accept under such conditions?"

The answer to this is that if the sitting-room is one that can be shut off and turned into a perfectly comfortable and private room, you could ask her without even having to explain. But if the bed is to be made up in your one living-room, giving her nowhere of her own to dress in or to rest in at any time—except when she gets into the bed made up for her late at night—and out of which she would have to hurry the first thing in the morning—I think you had better write her the truth. Tell her you wish you could ask her rto stay with you but that you can offer her only a temporary bed on the living-room sofa, and that it's not fair to offer discomfort believing it hospitality. If she writes back and says she wouldn't mind the discomfort, then you can urge her to come without further worry, since she could have said she would go to a hotel rather than inconvenience you. If she says this, let it go at that.

Card Leaving in 1940

Dear Mrs. Post: At a tea given to meet a bride, how many visiting cards am I supposed to leave?

Answer: According to today's following of yesterday's convention, three is the greatest number ever to be left at one time. In your case you would leave two—one for the hostess and one for the bride. I do admit, however, that I think it is sensible to encourage the budding practice of leaving no card for the hostess if one knows her very well, and to leave one card only with "For Mrs. ——" (The name of the guest of honor) written across it.

Men's Clothes at Evening Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Is the cutaway coat proper for the men in a wedding taking place as early in the evening as six o'clock?

Answer: I think they should wear evening dress since the ceremony itself is taking place at six and the reception is decidedly after six. In cases where the ceremony is before six o'clock and the reception after six, they could choose either.

Player Must Know When to Use High Card

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Every one is familiar with the type player who hoards his aces and kings for dear life, as though he might never be dealt another one. It is something less than a joy to cut him for partner. But he is no more dangerous than the other extreme, the spendthrift, who fritters away his resources with no thought for a "rainy day." Such a player as the declarer in today's hand.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the fourth highest spade, dummy played the ten, and since declarer wanted to be in his own hand for a club finesse, he overtook with the queen, next leading the six of clubs. Dummy played the ten, and East held up the king. Naively convinced that the club finesse had been "proved," declarer now made an atrocious play to get back to his own hand: he led a heart and finessed with the queen! West smothered it with the king and after deciding that there was no hope for enough defensive tricks in any suit except possibly hearts, returned the ten of hearts. East, to guard against a doubleton in West's hand, overtook with the jack, which declarer (suddenly apprehensive) allowed him to hold, but a third round drove out the ace. A second club finesse was gobbled up by East's king and two good hearts were promptly cashed, for the contract's defeat.

It was nothing less than a crime for South to have mangled this almost foolproof hand! A count of tricks would have clearly shown that only four club tricks were necessary, even without a second spade finesse, and without a finesse in hearts. The one thing South should not have done was to jeopardize his heart stopper before clubs were established. No effort should have been made to shut out the club king; after the ten won the second trick the ace and queen should have been laid down. In this way, four-odd would have been a lay-down.

Long Engagement Usually Works Out Disastrously

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20 in love with a boy of the same age. He is studying medicine and will be seven more years at school. Then it will be two or three years more before he will be well enough established in his profession to be able to marry. He lives in another city and I do not see him often. He wants me to wait for him and to promise that I will not go out with any other man during all of that time. It seems to me that ten years is a long time to ask a girl to wait. What do you think?

A CONSTANT READER.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

I think that nine times out of ten a long engagement works out disastrously for both the man and the woman, and that any girl is very foolish who goes into one. Try to take a cold, dispassionate appraising view of the proposition that this young man makes to you.

He asks you to deny yourself all of the pleasures of girlhood and to spend the ten best years of your life sitting on the anxious seat on the chance that he will come back and get you. You are to have no beaux, no parties, no dates, no good times. You are just to sit at home with Mother and Father and suck your thumb instead of running around having good times with the other boys and girls. You are expected to get all the happiness you require by just thinking about him and wondering what he is doing. Nice, cheerful prospect, isn't it?

Worse still, you are to give up every opportunity of marrying anybody else, with no certainty that he will marry you. The ten years between twenty and thirty are the years when a woman is prettiest and most attractive. They are her matrimonial harvest time, and if she doesn't make her hay while the sun of her girlhood shines she is apt to gather in a very poor crop.

Now when the ten years are up, ih which you have done your patient waiting stunt, the man may want to marry you, and he may not. In the long years in which you have been separated the chances are that you will have grown very far apart. Environment and association will have changed and molded you both.

You will not come together as the ardent boy and girl of 20, but as a mature man and woman, who have learned to think different thoughts and have different viewpoints, different habits. Each of you may have lost the characteristics that appealed to the other, or your tastes may have changed so that the qualities you find entrancing now will bore you to tears then. Not many of our fancies survive ten years.

Of course, people often do marry at the end of long engagements, but in most cases it is merely the paying of a debt of honor on the man's part. He feels bound to marry the girl he has kept from marrying some other man, while on the woman's part it is desperation. She has given up all other men for this one, and it is her last call to the dining car.

Don't put yourself into this unfortunate position. Don't cut yourself out of all the pleasures of girlhood. Don't give any man a ten-year option on your heart and hand. Tell the young man to go on with his studies, and that when he is ready to talk business to call around again, and if you love him then as you do now, that you will say "yes."

Go On to School

Dear Miss Dix—I am thinking of quitting school and getting a job. I don't have to do it, as my father is willing to give me the opportunity of acquiring a thorough education. But the point is, if I go to school, it is so long to wait to have a good time and be my own boss. I don't like to be under parental rule. Tell me just what to do. JACK.

Answer:

I entreat you to keep on in school and get the best education that you are capable of taking. If you don't, you will spend the balance of your life regretting it. Believe me, you are taking a very short-sighted view of the subject, Jack, and you will make a very bad bargain if you throw away a whole lifetime of good for a few parties and a little freedom now.

In the brief note that you have written me there are ten words that you have misspelled and that I have corrected. A boy as ignorant as that will have to take a menial job, where the pay will be very small. Worse still, he can never rise much higher. He can never earn much more money. And to have even what you call a good time—to have a car, to wear good clothes, to be able to take the girls out to places of amusement—costs a lot of money. More than you will ever be able to afford unless you fit yourself for a good-paying job.

That is putting the matter on the very lowest plane, but it should make you realize how foolish you will be to blight all of your prospects for the future for the sake of a little fun now. So take my advice. Go on to school. Study hard and get an education that will enable you to take a good place in the world, instead of a poor one. You won't find that time goes slowly if you keep busy and put your heart into your work.

About Petting

Dear Miss Dix—When a man decides to marry is he expecting too much if he asks that the girl has not been petted? A READER.

Answer:

It depends on whether the man has been a petter himself or not. If he has made every girl with whom he has gone pay for his attentions by permitting him to kiss her and caress her, what right has he to demand that the girl he marries has kept herself unsmirched?

He has rubbed the bloom off of a lot of peaches for other men, and it seems to me that he has a nerve to expect to get the one unhandled in the whole basket. Women are what men make them, and no man has a right to refuse to take his own handiwork.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Voters are more incensed by a petty, obvious tax than by a federal budget over 40 billions of dollars out of balance. Other things being equal, people are most interested in those things which are nearest their persons in space and time. They are more concerned over today than over tomorrow or next month, and they are more incensed by a petty local irritation than by a major miscarriage of justice in a distant state.

CASE Q-106: Patrick H., aged 47, is a politician.

"Politics is about 90 per cent psychology and about 10 per cent economics and business," he laughingly commented.

"Our government actually should be run by specialists and practical business men, for it is the largest business in the world.

"But scientists and business men are often not adept in selling themselves. So they cannot win votes. Sometimes they actually alienate voters by their failure to understand human nature.

"Politicians, on the contrary, know pretty well how to deal with people. Backslapping, handshaking and kissing of babies is no joke to a real politician.

"He also shows up at all funerals and sends flowers and condolences to the bereaved. He congratulates the parents of new babies, and must donate to every conceivable religious, fraternal and civic society.

"Dr. Crane, what further advice would you give to the political candidates?"

DIAGNOSIS:

A few years ago I surveyed several hundred young voters in Chicago asking them what they would recommend for improving the political situation and welfare of our country.

They represented both major parties, and spontaneously voiced their personal views. Only 11 of the entire group even mentioned the terrific national debt.

But they were almost unanimous in criticizing the 3 per cent retail sales tax which we have in Illinois. Billions of dollars imbalance on the part of the federal treasury didn't touch their immediate lives as closely as the extra one-cent tax on their 35-cent lunch check.

Not one of this large group even mentioned the tariff, though they were all employed men and women, about 60 per cent being nominal Republicans while the remaining 40 per cent were Democrats.

How To Influence People

It would be possible to compute various gradations of human interest or degrees of "psychological distance."

For example, we are more interested in what happens to ourselves than in what occurs in Europe or Asia. We are also more vitally wrapped up in our state than we are in the nation. And our own city is more interesting to us than the rest of the state.

Finally, we are more concerned with our own family than with our nearest neighbors. A one-cent tax on a luncheon check, therefore, strikes us personally and immediately.

Hidden taxes, therefore, do not arouse as much opposition as do obvious taxes, for the average voter does not look beneath superficial facts.

What Do People Want

Aside from their wanting panaceas of the Huey Long brand and large doles or pensions, peoples like to be freed from such petty irritations as retail sales taxes, the needless expense and time of getting documents notarized, as for a 25-cent fee, the wasteful overlapping of taxes, and such inequalities as varying automobile taxes from one state to another.

Voters usually prefer hidden taxes, even when they know they are paying such taxes, for they are irritated at the nuisance of making change when extra pennies are involved.

Business men, too, dislike the multiciplicity of taxes which waste valuable time and money to compute. They must hire extra accountants, auditors and bookkeepers to compute their taxes. These extra workers are an extra strain on the camel's back of our American economic system.

People want simplified government by "horse sense" statesmen instead of by brain-trusters with asinine theories.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Mrs. MacDonald, Joan's mother, and Richard MacDonald, Joan's half-brother, are questioned. Richard says he went to Long Island to see his mother and sick father, but has no proof of the hour he arrived.

Chapter 12

'Always Worrying'

We sat there, all six of us, watching the Sergeant and waiting to see what he would do or say next. Outside I could hear the harsh scraping of a snow shovel as it struck the ice, and Norton's voice as he called to someone. When the Sergeant finally spoke and the tension lessened, I looked at Dirck. His eyes were resting thoughtfully on the book-shelves on the far side of the room.

"Then you knew nothing about your sister Joan's death until you came here today," Sergeant Long was saying.

"Nothing."

The Sergeant, I thought, seemed to be having trouble finding anyone with a water-tight alibi. He'd soon have to arrest all of us on suspicion.

He looked at his notebook. "Your sister left a letter on her desk, and among other things she mentioned in it that she was worried about you. What's the reason for that?"

A strained expression crept over his face. "I can't think of anything," he said. "Except that Joan—well. Joan was always worrying." He glanced about uneasily.

"That seems a little far-fetched to me. Always worrying," the Sergeant grunted.

Richard drew out his handkerchief again and mopped his fore head. He was very pale, and I thought he loked almost ill. "What I mean is this," he said with some hesitation. "She worried about my work . . . my future," he added lamely.

The Sergeant regarded him for a moment, thoughtfully, then brought a small package out of his pocket, unwrapped it and drew out a string of metal beads. "Do you recognize this necklace?"

MacDonald looked at it with a puzzled expression, reached a thin hand forward to take it, and then drew back.

"It's all right to handle it."

"No, I've never seen them before," he said after he took the string of beads from the Sergeant and looked at them closely.

"If your sister had worn them, would you remember it, or do you think you wouldn't have noticed?" the Sergeant persisted.

"I'd remember it. Joan rarely wore jewelry, except for rings, and this carved metal is odd. I'm sure I would have noticed it."

The Sergeant leaned forward. "They were around her neck when we found her, so someone must have given them to her last evening. Would you have any idea who might have done that? Was anyone in the habit of giving her jewelry?"

"I don't know," Richard murmured. "I mean . . . it would only be a guess and it might implicate somebody who had nothing to do with this."

"I see how you feel," the Sergeant said, and his voice was a little more kindly than usual. "But this is important. We must find out who gave her the necklace. It doesn't mean necessarily that whoever gave it to her was the person who strangled her."

The girl's brother winced. I wished that the Sergeant would take it easy. The boy looked ready to collapse.

"The only person I can think of would be Tim—Tim Lathrop," he said slowly. "He has given her one or two rings and a bracelet."

Perfectly Happy

"Lathrop," the Sergeant murmured to himself, and then turned to Nicholas Kimball. "He's the man who dropped into the shop last night? The note that Miss Kent wrote was addressed to him?"

"Yes," Mr. Kimball agreed with some reluctance. "Last evening he came to see Joan. He stopped in the shop first."

"But he did go up to see her?"

"Yes. I sent some ice-cream up with him that I'd just bought for Joan. Since he was going up I gave it to him to take to her, but he came back with it. He looked terribly worried, and when I asked him why she hadn't taken it he looked at me in a dazed way and said that she hadn't wished to be disturbed. He didn't see her at all, just stood in the hall, I imagine, and called to her. He forgot he had the ice-cream until he came back to the shop."

"Tim Lathrop is the one person you can't accuse," Richard broke in fiercely. "He was crazy about Joan."

The Sergeant disregarded the interruption. "What time was that?" he asked Mr. Kimball.

"About ten o'clock, I believe."

"Rather late to call on a girl, wasn't it?"

Dirck nudged me and even Mr. Kimball smiled faintly when he said, "You're not very sophisticated, are you, Sergeant? However, as it happens, Joan worked in the shop every day from three in the afternoon until ten in the evening, so any engagements she had were after ten."

"I see," the Sergeant replied gruffly. "Now perhaps you can tell me who the woman is your niece mentioned in her letter—the woman who dropped in to see her last night."

Mr. Kimball and Richard looked at each other, and it seemed to me that a glance of understanding flashed between them. It was Mr. Kimball who replied:

"I know of no woman who was here last night."

But he didn't say anything about the woman in the letter. Either the Sergeant was napping or thought it unimportant, for he asked how long Joan had been working for her uncle. It seems she'd been in New York for about a year and a half and had taken an art course for about six months and then given it up.

"Why?" the Sergeant asked.

"It was quite expensive," Mr. Kimball told him. "I believe that she felt she couldn't afford it."

"If it's not too personal a question," pursued the Sergeant, "does the family have any money?"

The girl's mother interposed with a quick glance at her brother. "There was plenty of money for her art course, but after she had gone for six months it was decided that she didn't have talent enough to go on with it."

"I see," said the Sergeant. "You and your niece," he said, again directing his attention to Mr. Kimball, "did you get on well?"

"Very well," Mr. Kimball answered readily. "She enjoyed working in the shop. In addition to antiques I have quite a fine collection of books here, and she was always interested in them. In fact, you will find quite a nice collection of her own in her apartment. Some I gave her and others she got from her father."

"Then she was perfectly happy in her work?"

"Perfectly," He nodded.

No Alibi

"You have been accused of the murder, you know, Mr. Kimball?" the Sergeant said unexpectedly.

Mrs. MacDonald gasped and Dirck Kolff flashed a questioning glance at me.

"No," he said quietly. "I was not aware of it."

"Well, you have been, so you'd better have a pretty good alibi for last night."

Mr. Kimball regarded the Sergeant thoughtfully. "That will be unfortunate for me, Sergeant. I have no alibi." He sat perfectly still, his long slender hands resting on his knees.

The Sergeant was taken aback. "Did you go up to see your niece last night?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"After Mr. Lathrop left. I was worried, naturally."

"Why?"

Mr. Kimball turned on the Sergeant angrily. "Besides I was fond of her, because she had been ill, and because she had not wanted to see Mr. Lathrop. That's why!" he shouted.

"Yes, yes," the Sergeant murmured placatingly. "Go on."

"I had a customer directly after Mr. Lathrop left," Mr. Kimball continued, his voice still shaking. "So I wasn't able to close the shop and go up to her until about a quarter to eleven."

"Did you go into her room?"

"Yes, I called to her from the hall and she opened the door."

Mrs. MacDonald reached forward and took her brother's arm. "I didn't know Joan had been ill," she said in a dazed voice. "Why didn't you write to me?" There were tears in the woman's eyes and her hand resting on Mr. Kimball's sleeve, was shaking.

"She had a bad cold, that's all," her brother told her soothingly. "It was quite a lot better last night, but I told her not to work. The shop is drafty."

It made me shiver. The poor woman was upset about the girl's cold when she had been dead for hours, murdered.

The Sergeant was pacing the shop impatiently and finally came to a standstill by a side window. "Then you were the last person in her apartment?" he shouted suddenly at Mr. Kimball.

"I couldn't have been the last person in the apartment."

"Why?"

"Because the last person must have been the murderer," the man said evenly.

"Not necessarily," snapped the Sergeant, and then he paused. He stared out of the window and his mind seemed more on the snow in the side yard than on Mr. Kimball. "There could have been someone in after the murderer, who for some reason didn't raise an alarm!"

Mr. Kimball stared at him curiously.

"You say she was still alive when you went up there?" the Sergeant went on.

"Yes."

The Sergeant swung around and faced us. "If she was still alive when you went up there, was she still alive when you left? Did you murder Joan Kent?"

Continued Monday.

Boy, Girl Scouts Entitled To Respect of U. S. Citizens

BY ANGELO PATRI

The Scouts, boys and girl, are important organizations. They are entitled to the respect and appreciation of the people of the country from the government down to the least and last taxpayer. They serve a public need and a most essential one, the preservation of the Youth to our national ideals. Anybody who loves his country and desires to have its best qualities carried on from generation to generation should hold up the hands of the Scouts.

When you see a group of boys or girls in khaki uniforms, looking a bit conscious and trying not to, performing one of their functions at some public celebration, salute them in spirit and if possible in fact. They are taking the first unsure steps on the road to public service. The public will be better served when they and their ideals arrive at maturity.

The Scouts take their pledges seriously and it is not too much to ask that the community accept them just as seriously. These children set out to do a good deed every day. There may be something frankly childish in the idea of making certain of one good deed each day but if so it would do some grown people good to carry that naive notion into their daily living. A good deed in one of their days might surprise the community but they would applaud it.

Scouts are pledged to be useful. No finer ideal than usefulness was ever established in any civilization. Children who are useful to others are being most useful to themselves in building up character qualities that will stand them in good stead in days to come and thereby bring a wealth of citizenship to their community. We can stand all the usefulness we can get.

Scouts are encouraged to preserve their health, and again that is good. Healthy boys and girls are good children. They make mistakes but in the healthy fashion of active childhood, a far different thing from the mistakes made by those of unhealthy minds and bodies. Health is greatly to be desired and its possession by any great group of the community is a priceless asset.

The world outside the door, is a place for the expansion of the mind and the recreation of the soul. The Scouts make this their background. They live outdoors as much as possible. They try to keep their feet on the ground. Long hikes to a camping place make a holiday program supreme. They put up their tents, or open their huts, light their fires, cook their meals, catch them first oftener than not, live and work together in the spirit of brotherly companionship. The girls can hold their own with their brothers in any of these activities and they do them a bit better on the housekeeping side.

These organizations of Youth are healthy. They are not aiming toward any revolutionary reforms of life. They are taking it as they find it and they find it pretty good. It offers them health, play under the open sky, the rivers and lakes and seas, the mountains and hills and the fields, for play spaces, the world of people as their friends and fellow citizens. They have a chance to serve, to feel needed and wanted and liked. They are bound to usefulness, decency and good will. They look good to me and I hope to all who meet them. They promise to carry American ideals into the next generation. That looks good to all of us. Let's help them.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

SATURDAY TALK

A long, well-written letter has come from 13-year-old Fred Fowler of Rumsey, Alberta. Here are a few paragraphs from his letter:

"Your articles prove useful for school work, especially in Social studies. I have saved many of them, but do not paste them in a scrapbook. I place them in piles marked 'Aviation,' 'Biography' and so on. This enables me to use them in school when we are taking subjects you have written about. I have about a hundred clippings.

"I like your articles very much, but I am interested in radio and have not noticed any article on it. Could you please write about radio and television?

"You have never told your readers what kind of a fellow you are. My teacher told me you were just a young man while I had presumed you were an old man with a long gray beard. Why not publish a biography of yourself? After all, the readers like to know something about the author."

It has been quite a long time since I have written about radio, and I was thinking of writing about it before Fred's letter reached me. Perhaps he and other readers will be glad to know that I am planning to have articles on the subject in the early future.

As to beards, I haven't any! I never have had one, and probably never will—unless the time comes when shaving seems too much trouble.

Once or twice in my life I have let a little mustache grow, but it seemed more trouble than it was worth, and was given over to the tender mercy of my razor.

I am not, however, really a young man any more. I was young—only 24—when I started writing a column for boys and girls, but the years have come and gone. In 20 or 25 years I shall be old enough to have "a long gray beard," whether or not I let one grow.

So many readers have asked me to tell the story of my life that I have thought of doing so. There are many things of which I might speak—the time in my boyhood when I published a magazine, college adventures, travels in foreign lands, my first book, letter from readers of our column. I think I shall write a book about my life some day, but maybe not for 15 or 20 years.

In the meantime I am likely to use some Saturday Talks to tell stories about my boyhood and events in my travels.

First Aid Demonstration At Kimberly Village Hall

Kimberly — Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, gave a demonstration of first aid in the home at the village hall Friday afternoon. Miss Klein said that every home should have a first aid cabinet. Treatment of a wound or injury within the first ten or fifteen minutes, before infection, may save many weeks in a hospital or even life, she said.

She also showed the group how bandaging should be done; how to fix hot and cold compresses for inflamed eyes, and how to apply them effectively; one of the reasons why children have earaches and what to do, and what sometimes causes deafness in later life.

William Wamser, Appleton, showed a safety movie on how a small scratch or cut, not properly treated, can develop into disfigurement, dismemberment or even prove fatal. Miss Klein will conduct another meeting at the village hall next Friday afternoon.

A demonstration will be given in the clothing room at the high school at 7 o'clock Monday evening, on how to use the various sewing machine attachments, by a representative of one of the standard makes of sewing machines.

Learn Little About Activities of Woman Who Jumped to Death

Detroit — (AP) — The seven years from the day Geraldine Kenyon Bourque left her husband and infant daughter in Pontiac until yesterday when she leaped to her death from the 17th floor of a downtown Detroit hotel remained an unsolved puzzle for Detroit investigators today.

The body of the 28-year-old Michigan beauty, who had registered at the hotel as "J. Stoddard" of New York, lay in the county morgue awaiting the claims of relatives.

Her husband, Dan Bourque automotive worker who lives at Pontiac with their daughter Rita, now 8 years old, identified it yesterday.

Two bits of information cast the only illumination on the seven unaccounted-for years. One was a police statement that Mrs. Bourque's fingerprints corresponded with those of a "Rita O'Neil" arrested for investigation in 1933 in Baltimore.

The other was the statement of William S. Paley of New York, president of the Columbia Broadcasting system, that he met a "Miss Stoddard" about a year ago.

Summer Theater Leader Succumbs in Bay State

Dennis, Mass. — (AP) — Raymond Moore, 42, pioneer summer theater founder and owner of the Cape Playhouse here, died today in New York.

Many performers and playwrights of stage and screen got their start under his direction, including Bette Davis, who once served as an usher in the playhouse.

A little more than a year ago he was divorced from his second wife, Mrs. Marianne Heath Schultz Moore. His first wife was Mrs. Edna Tweedy Moore, heiress of the $10,000,000 fortune of Edward Bradley, late Wisconsin lumberman.

McGovern Blames 'Old Guard' for Democrat Losses

Asks Support for New Organization at Waupaca County Meeting

Manawa—Blaming the sharp decline of Democrat votes in Wisconsin since 1932 to the "Old Guard" Democrats and attacking the Republican party for its "greed and selfishness," former Governor Francis E. McGovern, Milwaukee, urged listeners at a meeting of Waupaca county Democrats at the Central hotel here Friday morning to vote for delegates to the National Democratic convention endorsed by the Democratic Party organization of Wisconsin.

Gustave Keller, Appleton, who presided, joined in criticism of the Democratic group which has a rival slate in the field for delegates to the party's national convention. Both men are candidates at large, representing the new state party organization. Pledged to support President Roosevelt or the candidate of his choice.

"If we don't come to our senses soon," McGovern said, "the Democratic party in Wisconsin will be a lost issue. Think of it—in 1932, 800,000 Democrat votes were cast in Wisconsin while in 1938 there were only 78,000."

"Phoney Delegates"

The former governor charged that the "Old Guard" Democratic party in Wisconsin had traded with the Republicans and lost out in the state. He called the rival slate of delegate candidates "a phoney set of delegates who claim to support President Roosevelt. This will mean a division from which Vice President Garner will prosper," he predicted.

"Mr. Garner has a right to chuckle over this," he remarked. "It is a hostile movement, whether intentional or not," referring to the Roosevelt-Farley ticket. "Such delegates," he said, "will go to the national convention in Chicago as uninstructed delegates so they can trade votes."

Shifting his attack to the Republicans, McGovern declared that the depression was not brought on by the World war but was a home-made article resulting from the "greed, selfishness and egotism of 'big busines' leaders." He said, "'Big business' conspired with Andrew Mellon and former President Hoover and for 12 years the economic royalists formed combinations in restraint of trade and mergers until 60 families owned more than half the wealth of the country."

Changes "Dictatorship"

Keller said that the "second so-called Roosevelt slate" in Wisconsin was unnecessary and represented "dictatorship" by a few, whereas the Democratic Party organization has held open meetings at all times, stands for the true principles of the party and is representative of the people.

Other speakers were Curt Beyries, Wausau, and John Lawrie, Red Granite, delegate candidates from the seventh congressional district.

Green Bay Man Fined For Jumping Arterial

Vernon Sampo, Green Bay, pleaded guilty of failing to stop for an arterial and was fined $5 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. County police made the arrest in the town of Cicero.

Albert W. Winius, 101 E. Lawrence street, and William Winius, 123 S. Appleton street, were fined $1 and costs each for violating the all night parking law. They were arrested by city police.

Fratricide of 25 Years Ago Is Declared Sane

White Plains, N. Y.—(AP)— Chester B. Duryea, who slew his wealthy father a quarter of a century ago in Brooklyn, was declared sane today by Supreme Court Justice Lee Parsons Davis.

The court ordered his release from Matteawan State hospital to stand trial for the killing.

Duryea, who is 69, was committed to the institution after the slaying of General Hiram Duryea. He began his fight for release two months ago.

New York Stocks Are Irregular in Curtailed Trade

Prospects of Important European Developments are Blamed

New York —(AP)— Prospects of important European developments during the weekend were given principal blame today for a spotty stock market.

The list steadied at the start, but turned irregular as the brief session proceeded. Declines of fractions to around a point were well distributed at the close.

While there were occasional active flurries, dealings frequently came to a standstill. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 350,000 shares for the two hours.

A fair amount of business optimism remained in Wall street, but increased tension over the Russian-Finnish peace move was said to have caused some traders to shelve commitments and was a decidedly restrictive influence so far as potential buyers were concerned.

Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Backward stocks most of the time—several stiffened at the finish—were Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Chrycler, Bethlehem steel, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, United States Rubber, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe.

Checker Cab was an isolated strong spot, getting up to a new 1940 top, along with Packard. American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines. Supported also were Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania. Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, American Can and Standard Oil of N. J.

Impeding the steels were forecasts of another drop next week in mill operations. Some disappointment was expressed by those who had expected production in this industry to turn upward by the middle of March. Most observers now believe the forward switch may be delayed until well into April, with the output rate dropping to 60 per cent or lower before the tide is stemmed.

Automotive accessory stocks were relatively lively, especially those of companies able to handle airplane equipment manufacturing as a sideline. The thought here was that if the talked-of British-French order for $1,000,000,000 worth of new planes materializes, part will seep into the motor equipment concerns.

Nibbling at shares of several airlines was understood to reflect reports of heavy passenger traffic lately with visions now entertained of a substantial jump in earnings for the air carriers.

In the curb Standard Oil of Ohio added more than 2 to its 3-point advance of yesterday. Posting modest gains also were Sentry Safety Control, St. Regis Paper and Lake Shore.

New Surgery Lights Used in War Zones And Blackout Areas

Boston — (AP)— New "flashlights of surgery," described as opening a new field for surgeons operating at the front line in Europe's war zone or in cities subject to air-raid blackouts, were exhibited today to the New England Hospital association.

They are surgical retractors — instruments used to keep wounds open to light during surgery—but instead of being made of metal, they are of a transparent, plastic material through which light from a 10-cent flashlight bulb in a detachable handle is "piped," without reflection, into the operating field.

Dr. Jerome L. Bayer, New York, who exhibited them, said the instruments "eliminate the necessity of hospital lighting," that in front-line surgery, they can be used by simply plugging them in to an electric socket on a field ambulance.

Declaring the retractors already were in use by Great Britain and France in the war area, Bayer said, in an interview:

"Their use for emergency operations in the war field is apparent, but they should also prove invaluable aids to surgeons faced with emergencies at night during air-raid blackouts, and to operators working in suburban homes established as hospitals in the event of evacuation of city hospitals."

$10 Is Stolen from Symco General Store

Manawa — About $10 in currency was stolen from a cash register in the Nordholz general store at Symco between 7 and 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Les Nordholz, owner of the store, was at his home nearby when the burglary took place. It was the third burglary of this type at Symco during the last two weeks, authorities said.

Kraft's Cagers Win Noon-Hour Loop Title

Ray Kraft's noon-hour cagers annexed the noon-hour basketball title yesterday by defeating Robert Steudel's team, 36 to 16, at Appleton High school. Kraft led his team with eight field goals and two free throws while Dale Beregner led the losers with three baskets. Kraft's team won the first round of the league schedule and Steudel's the second round.

State Tax Collections Are Sent to Treasury

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, has sent $75,897.36 state taxes collected in the county to the state treasury department. The breakdown of the total shows charity and penal institutions $32,648.12, miscellaneous $221.85, special loans $1,696, school district loans $20,406.57 and forestry tax $20,897.36.

CHILD FATALLY INJURED

Nekoosa—(AP)—George Faulkner, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Faulkner, was injured fatally last night when struck by an automobile as he crossed the street near his home.

Prices of Wheat Finish on Upbeat With Late Buying

Fractional Losses Wiped Out in Rally on Chicago Market

Chicago —(AP)— Late buying, most of which came from previous "short" sellers who were covering their sales on reports of crop losses in the southwest, and uncertainty regarding European developments during the weekend, lifted wheat prices more than a cent before the close today.

Fractional losses were wiped out in the late rally, which put prices up almost 2 cents from the early lows.

Wheat closed ⅞-1⅛ cents higher than yesterday, May $1.04-1.04¼, July $1.02-1.02⅜; corn ½-¾ up, May 56⅞-⅞, July 57⅜; oats ½-¾ higher.

Cash wheat was unchanged to ½ higher, basis unchanged; receipts 9 cars; shipping sales 10,000 bushels. Corn ½-1 lower; basis unchanged to ½ down; receipts 83 cars; shipping sales 14,000 bushels; booked to arrive 26,000 bushels. Oats unchanged.

Coolerators to be Displayed at K. P. Better Home Show

Original Cost Plus Service Economy Coolerator Features

Expected to attract the attention of a great many of the thousands of visitors at the Knights of Pythias annual Better Homes show, March 14-16, at the Armory, is the Lutz Ice company exhibit of latest model Coolerators. Featuring unequalled beauty in appearance and design and outstanding performance, Coolerators have caught the fancy of more than one-half million homemakers throughout the country.

Not until Coolerator was invented was any real progress made in solving the refrigeration problem of having not only cold air protection, which any good refrigerator is able to give, but also washed, humidified, circulated air, the Lutz company explains.

Coolerator, the firm maintains, was the first refrigerator on the market to offer the now popular patented air-conditioned chamber which is the secret for fresh food preservation. As a result of this chamber, the air is constantly washed, purified, and is circulated several times each minute, providing, in addition, the necessary steady, constant, cold temperature. Then too, no dangerous chemicals of any kind are present to cause worry or trouble and no intricate machinery in its construction that may break down or wear out just when refrigeration protection is needed most.

In addition to these many advantages, Coolerator's original cost plus the economy of years of service without repair or reconditioning service convinces purchasers at the very outset that they are making a wise choice in choosing Coolerator.

For high quality fuel, coal, coke, and the popular package coal, bulk ice cubes, pure manufactured ice or a ten day free trial of a beautiful new Coolerator the way is made open to everyone by merely 'phoning the firm's headquarters, number 2.

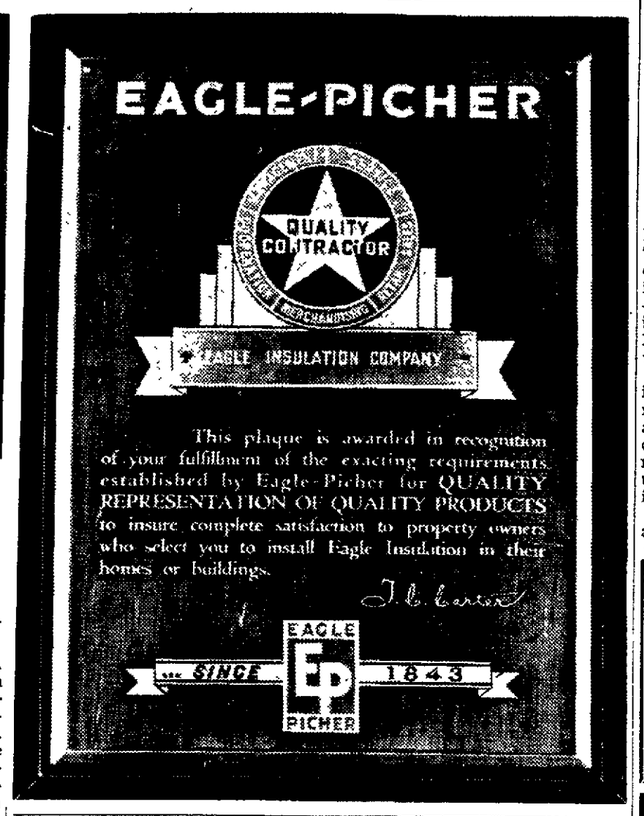
EAGLE INSULATION COMPANY WINS QUALITY CONTRACTORS PLAQUE



Plaque to be Displayed as Part Of Firms Exhibit at the Knights Of Pythias Better Homes Show

The presentation of the beautiful bronze plaque was made by T. C. Carter, above, vice-president and general manager of the insulation division of the Eagle-Picher Lead Company, at a banquet held March 2, in Chicago, Ill. The banquet concluded a three-day Eagle Home Insulation Seminar which was attended by Eagle Insulation contractors from over a wide area.

The much-sought-after bronze plaque award is given as part of a nation-wide program among contractors holding Eagle franchises to promote fair trade practises and quality workmanship throughout the group. Extremely rigid requirements are set up as a standard for contractors to follow in competition for the award won by the local company. In all, 32 requisites are set forth, officials of the firm stated, which are to be followed by Eagle Insulation contractors. These requisites are based around the general heads of management, both general and financial, retail sales, cooperation, service, and merchandising.

It is hoped that by the competition method described to raise the standard of contractors performance to the highest possible level. This aim has been achieved, the firm pointed out, and the system has contributed definitely toward the ultimate goal of increased customer satisfaction.

The plaque will be publicly displayed at the Knights of Pythias better home show at the Armory March 14-16, the firm stated today, as part of its exhibit on Eagle Insulation. As in past years, the Eagle Insulation company booth at the home show, will display the product itself, with pictures portraying the method of installation, and views of homes and buildings which have been Eagle insulated.

Well over 400 installations in this territory have been credited to the Eagle Insulation company, 516 N. Oneida street, since it received its Eagle franchise. Justifiably proud of the large number of installations the firm is considerably more proud of the fact that this figure also represents a like number of satisfied Eagle Insulation owners.

Fuel savings up to 40% and as much as 15 degrees cooler temperatures in the warm summer months are proven claims made by the firm for Eagle Insulated homes and buildings. In addition, dozens of other equally important advantages are attributed to the product, the firm points out.

Sold on easy term payments, with no down payment required, purchase of Eagle Insulation is made as easy as the installation itself and with the added fuel savings, to say nothing of the welcome, cool, summer comfort resulting, the cost of this type of insulation is soon returned to the owners, according to the Eagle company. Estimates are given without obligation by phoning 2600.

Technocracy Is Ready for Crisis, Members Explain

Appleton Section Moves To New Permanent Headquarters

(This article has been prepared by Technocracy, Inc., Section 2, Regional Division 8844, Appleton, Wis.)

In June, 1929, the index of industrial production of the Federal Reserve Board (1923-25 equals 100) reached the then all-time high of 125; factory employment totaled 45,649,000 and unemployment was estimated at 2,851,000.

Ten and one-half years later, in December, 1939, industrial production reached a new high of 128—with factory employment totaling only 42,267,000 and unemployment estimated in excess of 10,000,000.

One morning in October, 1929, America awoke to the beginning of the "Great American Depression." Today, ten years and twenty-six borrowed billions later, the "Great American Depression" is still with us—bigger and better.

Collectively, America may well look with shame upon the record of those past ten years—ten futile years in which the leaders of American business and government have made not one factual admission of the nature of America's problem.

The innumerable economic contradictions brought forth by this America of today—the destruction of foodstuffs in the midst of poverty and starvation, rising production and ever declining employment, the alarming growth of the public debt, the increasing liquidity of all financial institutions and the near-zero interest rate—have forced to the recognition of every thinking individual, the imminence of an inevitable social change. Few recognize, however, the magnitude of the change involved; few recognize that conditions now existing upon this change that has no precedent in continent demand a major social human history—a change beside which the European developments of the past century pale to insignificance.

Solution

The problems of this continent are uniquely American. America, and America alone, has achieved abundance; the American problem is one of distributing abundance. America faces the transition from a scarcity to an abundance economy. America's problems are technological and will be solved only by an American solution of more technology.

Seven years ago, after thirteen years of uninterrupted research, Technocracy Incorporated gave to the people of this continent its analysis of the causes leading up to the "depression" and its predictions of the probable future trends. After seven years, Technocracy today stands fully confirmed in everything it said in 1933.

Technocracy in 1933 predicted a major, and possibly disastrous, social change—probably about 1940 or 1942. Predictions of science, subject to innumerable variables, can only be made in terms of probability—Technocracy, today, yet sees no reason to alter that statement.

Seven years ago, after thirteen years as a limited membership research group, Technocracy began building a popular membership organization; an organization totally unique in character, disdaining emotionalism and compromise and recruiting its membership upon recognition and pursuit of fact alone; an organization dedicated to the greatest social objective ever undertaken by man—that of preparing a continent for an inevitable but a planned and orderly social change.

Only Solution

In 1933 Technocracy posed a problem and sketched in broad outline the solution to that problem. That solution presented by Technocracy in 1933 yet remains the only suggestion made by any group that conforms to the conditions existing upon this continent. That organization undertaken at that time by Technocracy Incorporated yet remains the only organization, organized not to bring about a social change, but to maintain the life processes of a continent through a change that is inevitable.

Technocracy Incorporated, today, with active sections in every major city on the continent, its own press, its own fleet of grey squad cars, its own radio communications network, with hundreds of trained speakers in uniform, stands ready to aid in maintaining order and the flow of essential services in a time of national crisis. Technocracy Incorporated invites the participation of all thoughtful citizens of this continent in this wholly American organization, the Technological army of the New America.

New Headquarters

Meetings of the Appleton section of Technocracy, Inc. are held every Monday and Friday nights, and are open to the public except for the last Friday in the month. These meetings are held in the new section headquarters at 130 E. College avenue above the La Villa restaurant.

The growth which the section has enjoyed and the additional work that has fallen on the members because of this growth made it necessary that full-time quarters be available. Besides, this section will be better able to accommodate the general public at the public meetings which are held each Monday night and on Friday nights except for the last Friday of each month.

Business Places Will Open Saturday Nights

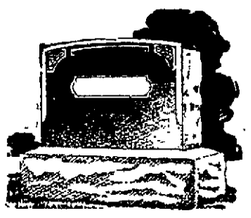
Must Decide Soon If Memorials are Planned in Spring

Twin City Monument Works Points to Need Of Early Selection

Memorial Day may seem a long time away according to the calender, and yet, it is dangerously close for those people who are planning on securing a memorial for erection on the family plot, reminds the Twin City Monument Works, 301-307 Main street, Neenah.

Now is the ideal time to make memorial selections, the firm points out, for with Spring coming on, a memorial ordered soon, can be ready and placed as soon as the snow has disappeared from the ground. Prompt action, therefore, is rewarded in the assurance that the desired memorial will be in complete readiness for Memorial Day. The duty and responsibility that this day holds will then have been properly and honorably cared for and the beauty of Spring and Summer allowed to enhance the sacredness of the burial plot.



While the memorial serves its honorable purpose through every day and every year, it is outstandingly useful on Memorial Day, explains the Twin City Monument Works. It demonstrates particularly on that day the devotion, pride, and love of the family and marks for the many who visit the cemetery, the name and history of the departed.

The Twin City Monument Works is not only well qualified but definitely capable of handling with satisfaction, any type of memorial assignment or any work of a related nature. This fact has been proved to be true by a great number of people through the years, by the recognized method of personal investigation of its work and services.

A special invitation is extended at this time by officials of the firm to stop in at its headquarters or 'phone 301-307 for an appointment with the assurance that consultation regarding any memorial need will cheerfully be given without the slightest obligation.

White Electrics Make Sewing Fun And Save on Time

Wiegand Sewing Machine Co. Describes Success Of Models

"My new White Electric is a revelation... and it's so easy to own!" This is the way one enthusiastic owner of a new White Electric sewing machine feels, and her opinion—according to the Wiegand Sewing Machine and Supply Co., 113 N Morrison street — is typical of women everywhere.

Many women discover, after trying the new White Electric, that machine sewing is really fun. They also are delighted to learn that they can fairly zip through ruffing, shirring and hemstitching — things that used to seem to take forever to finish.

Another special White Electric advantage is the White simplified sewing course that teaches "heaps" of short cuts, gives new ideas for smart clothes, slip covers — all at much less cost than ready-mades. Finally, women usually are amazed at the surprisingly generous trade-in allowances they get for their old machines when purchasing a new White Electric. Furthermore, terms are liberal and the new Whites are priced surprisingly low. As a matter of fact, White prices are the lowest in history. The machine bears the Good Housekeeping seal of approval.

There are 28 features in the new White Sewmaster Electrics to speed up sewing and to make it a real pleasure. Furthermore, when the top is closed on a White Sewmaster, it becomes a handsome desk — fit company for the finest piece of furniture in the house.

The Wiegand company, whose telephone number is 973-W, also offers the famous Singer and National sewing machines, as well as a full line of reconditioned used machines. It has a full line of sewing machine parts and operates a competent repair department.
